FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

Our New Killers

By REAR ADM. C. B. MOMSEN, USN,
Commander, Submarine Force, U. S.
Pacific Fleet

IN the long history of human failures that lead to war, now and then a new weapon has jumped far ahead of defenses that could be brought against it, winning battles, even wars, and changing the destiny of nations. Sometimes the maturation of a force depended on a seemingly trivial invention—the stirrup which enabled North European heavy cavalry to smash the infantry cohorts of the Mediterranean, and the new longbow which, in the hands of British light infantry, cut down the flower of French chivalry on the field at Agincourt.

Rear Adm. Momsen

Today, with the development and refinement of the snorkel breathing device, the submarine—already a fearsome weapon—has been tremendously improved as a battle unit. The increased underwater range, speed and other factors now in its favor give us a combatant vessel that for the first time approaches a true submarine. The latter, we believe, will become a reality when the atomic submarine, now building, joins the fleet, for atomic power will permit an undersea craft to operate naturally in its medium. It will be the first vessel designed as a submersible, capable also of being operated on the surface. This is in contrast to all earlier submarines that were constructed as surface vessels which could be made to dive and operate for a limited time submerged.

As neither the stirrup nor the longbow would have been decisive contributions had military organizations not been ready to use them, the snorkel is made effective because it, too, arrived when undersea fighting craft were ready for it. Now, with submarines capable of traveling vast distances without serious danger of detection (one of ours snorkelled 2,200 miles continuously), the attacker from beneath the seas has in its magazine guided missiles to launch against seacoast cities, improved offensive mines to harass coastal shipping, and much better torpedoes than we had at the beginning of World War II. Additionally, new basic types of submarine, such as the troop-carrying USS Perch, have proved their value, some by landing United Nations commandos behind Red

President Asks Survivor Benefits, Social Security, Self-Paid Retirement System

IN his budget message to Congress this week the President included estimates to cover pay increases for military personnel as provided by pending legislation. He also recommended passage of the bill to provide survivor benefits for dependents of military personnel, but proposed that it incorporate legislation to extend Social Security insurance to members of the Armed Forces.

The President suggested that a Congressional study be made of the establishment of a contributory retirement system for career military personnel. Other legislation advocated by the President in his budget message included the initiation of Universal Military Training, and strengthening the Organized Reserves and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

The President's suggestion for Congressional investigation of the possible establishment of a contributory retirement system came as a surprise to the Pentagon. It was learned authoritatively that this proposal did not originate with the Department of Defense, and it seemed obvious that it was not consulted about its inclusion in the budget message. Pres-

Voluntary Retirements

The restriction against voluntary retirements of officers of the Armed Services, now carried in the current appropriation act, would be dropped after next June if Congress accepts the recommendation in the President's Budget submitted to it this week.

The provision prohibits voluntary retirements except for physical disability, age, or when the application is approved by the Secretary of Defense as "in the best interests of the service, or, is required to avoid cases of individual hardship." It was enacted last year over the objection of the Department of Defense. The President now recommends that it be omitted from the 1953 act.

sumably it had its origin in the Bureau of the Budget.

The unofficial opinion of military authorities appeared to be that a contributory retirement system was not feasible. (Please turn to Back Page)

Gen. Kuter Tells Plan For Manpower "Austerity"

The story of how the Air Force will meet the challenge of increasing combat strength by 50 per cent with only a 20 per cent increase in personnel was told at the Air University last week by Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel.

Addressing a world-wide conference of command and personnel representatives at Maxwell AFB, Ala., General Kuter said that General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff, has called for "unprecedented frugality in the use of manpower." This will mean "increased austerity," the personnel experts were told.

"Our task in personnel, from the squadron level to Air Force Headquarters, in managing the personnel requirements, allocations, assignments and utilization can make or break our expanded force," said General Kuter. "Within an Air Force of over a million personnel, our task is one of the world's biggest management and personnel assignments."

General Kuter described the new Air Force classification system as "a new tool essential to the sound management of our officer resources."

"We have a shortage of executive experience to fill key jobs at all organization levels," he continued, "as well as a shortage of competent and experienced scientific and technical personnel in many other categories. During this period of expansion, the skill shortages will

Marine Selection Boards

Marine Corps selection boards will be convened this month and next to select Reserve officers for promotion to the ranks of colonel and lieutenant colonel.

Lieutenant colonels and majors, on inactive duty and those reporting for extended active duty since 1 July of last year, will be considered for promotion. The board to select colonels will convene on or about 31 Jan., and that to name new lieutenant colonels will meet on or about 21 Feb.

The Marine Corps said that no firm plans have been reached for the convening of Regular Marine Corps boards. The first such board to meet will select officers for promotion to captain, but no date has been set.

Tentative promotion zones established by the Corps for the two Reserve boards are: all officers senior to and including Lt. Col. Horace W. Fuller, 08062 and Maj. John G. McCloskey, 04668, on the tentative lineal list of Marine Corps Reserve officers with running dates promulgated by serial MC-1252240, dated 7 Nov. 1950, as modified.

Service in grade requirements established by paragraph 9153 of the Marine Corps Manual remain in effect, Headquarters said, but it is the intention of the Corps to ask the Secretary of the Navy to waive the requirement "that such service be satisfactory Federal service."

Recommendations will also be considered from commanding officers for the Senate to Begin Pay Hearings on 28 Jan.

Hearings on the House-approved bill to increase Service pay by 10 per cent will begin in the Senate Armed Services Committee on Monday, 28 Jan., the committee decided this week.

Department of Defense witnesses, led by Secretary Robert A. Lovett and Assistant Secretary Anna Rosenberg, were preparing this week for a full presentation of arguments in behalf of pay equity for the personnel of the Armed Services.

Also arriving in Washington this week was Mr. Laurence H. Whiting, of Chicago, a member of the Hook Commission which made the comprehensive restudy of Service pay in 1948. Mr. Whiting's testimony in the House was a strong factor in that committee's prompt action. In fact, the committee accepted Mr. Whiting's two recommendations—that the $800 limitation be removed and the retroactive features of the bill be dropped.

The President in his Budget Message to Congress spoke of the necessity for legislative action to make "increases in military pay and allowances comparable to the increases granted civilian employees of the government last year." He gave this the strongest form of endorsement by announcing that his budget includes an amount estimated to be sufficient to cover the cost of such an increase.

As reported in THE JOURNAL last week, the outlook is that the pay bill will have a rougher path to follow in the Senate than it did in the House. Senator Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Committee states that he is ready to support "cost of living" items, which he defines as subsistence and rental allowances, dependents' allotments, etc., but that he feels that increases in other items may need revision.

Senator Morse (R-Ore) told THE JOURNAL this week that while he believes there will have to be some adjustments in the bill, he is confident that the Armed Forces must be taken care of in light of the rising costs. "Retired personnel," he added, "must surely be included."

Senator Long (D-La) said, "I shall probably vote for it. The Armed Forces are underpaid."

Senator Johnson (D-Colo) reported that he favors an increase "for enlisted personnel in particular."

More emphatic was Senator Sparkman (D-Ala): "I am for an increase in pay for the Armed Forces. I have always voted for it. We have been too niggardly in our pay of the Armed Services. But I do not see why enlisted personnel, aside from those married, should receive the increase. We have taken care of them."

Senators Stennis (D-Miss), and Lodge (R-Mass), both stated that they had not yet formed an opinion and would await committee consideration before making up their minds.

Senator Hunt (D-Wyo) commented: "I

Bad Weather Slows Both Sides in Korea

In one of the biggest air victories of the Korean conflict, American Sabre jets on Friday, 25 Jan., shot down 10 enemy MIGs and probably destroyed an 11th Red plane. No losses of American planes were announced. Previously, on 23 Jan., two enemy planes were destroyed, one was probably destroyed and another was damaged.

Relative inactivity characterized ground operations in Korea this week. Both sides were content to patrol in front of their positions in the cold and stormy weather, and to make light probing attacks to determine opposing troop dispositions.

Most of the land fighting during the week consisted of minor patrol clashes west of Chorwon, east of Kumsong, in the Punch Bowl area, and on the east coast. Small units were engaged in these actions, and there was no significant change in positions.

Snow flurries and clouds restricted air activity on both sides. Allied land planes and carrier-based aircraft flew missions each day, but their number and scope were curtailed during most of the week.

Allied warships bombarded both coasts while maintaining a tight blockade, but naval firing was reduced somewhat by the inability to use aircraft for spotting targets during rough weather. On one occasion, Allied LSTs moved close inshore to rake enemy installations with 40-mm. gunfire.

1st Cavalry in Japan

It was announced this week at Far East headquarters that the United States 1st Cavalry Division had been withdrawn from Korea for station in Japan. The transfer was made nearly a month ago, but the announcement was withheld until the movement had been completed, and the division was deployed in its new area.

The 1st Cavalry Division is now in northern Hokkaido, the most northerly island of Japan, and is charged with the defense of the northern Japanese frontier. Russian troops are only three and one-half miles distant, on the tiny island of Habomai. Hokkaido is also only 10 miles from the Kuriles, now under Soviet control.

The division had been in Korea since early in the conflict and had participated in some of the heaviest fighting of the war. There has been a complete turnover of the personnel of the organization in the past year due to troop rotation, with scarcely any of those who went to Korea with the division 18 months ago now on its roster.

In the ground fighting in Korea this week the quiet of the western front was marred only by brief, but often sharp patrol skirmishes. There was an engagement with an enemy platoon northwest of Korangpo-ri, in which 10 Reds were killed and four wounded. West of Chorwon an Allied tank-infantry raiding party engaged an enemy unit of undetermined strength, and drew heavy mortar and artillery fire, after which the United Nations raiders returned to their base. Three Allied tanks were destroyed.

A small enemy group probed an advance Allied position in a series of night attacks northwest of Kumwha. There were three separate assaults on the United Nations position, but all were repulsed. East of Kumsong an Allied patrol was ambushed by the enemy, but fought its way out after a brief, and relatively heavy engagement.

Minor Red Attacks

Northeast of the Punch Bowl, an Allied raiding party dispersed a small enemy unit, and destroyed seven Red bunkers. United Nations units south of Kosong, near the east coast, repelled minor enemy probing attacks. Northwest of Kansong, in the same general area, another light enemy attack was broken up after a brief fight.

Allied warships bombarded both Korean coasts, but poor visibility, caused by clouds, fog, and snow, prevented accurate assessment of much of the damage inflicted. Heavy weather and thick clouds necessitated cancellation of some of the planned naval bombardment missions. (Please turn to Page 657)

Price Limit on Houses

The President's budget submitted to Congress this week recommends the elimination of the present limitations on the amounts to be expended on family housing units.

The current appropriation act sets a limit of $14,040 on housing units for generals, $12,040 for field officers, and $11,040 for company grade officers, or equivalent ranks, and $10,040 for enlisted personnel. The restriction is marked out in the President's recommended draft.

Survivors' Benefits

The President this week, in his annual budget message, states that proposed survivors' benefit legislation now before Congress "does not provide protection if service in the armed forces is terminated before retirement" and that he believes "protection should be continuous and that the most equitable way to achieve this protection is to extend the coverage of the old-age and survivors insurance system to all members of the armed forces."

The amended Social Security Act provides for an old age and survivors' insurance system which extends the scope of protection to the wife, children, widow, orphaned children, or parents of the wage earner. Under the amended plan, the wife of the insured man, when she reaches the age of 65, receives a monthly sum which is equivalent to half the amount paid to her husband.

Benefits are also paid to the widows, children under 18, and dependent parents (if there is no widow or child under 18) of those receiving benefits at the time of death, or those who die before they reach retirement age. If the man dies before he is 65, leaving a widow and minor children, the widow receives three-fourths of the monthly benefit to which her husband would have been entitled at the time of his death, and each minor child receives a monthly sum which is equal to half of the amount which would have been due the father. If there are no minor children, the widow (if she is under 65) receives a lump sum equal to three times her husband's monthly benefit.

In either case, the widow, after she reaches the age of 65, if she has not remarried, will receive for the rest of her life, three-fourths of the monthly benefit which would have been due her husband.

If the man leaves no widow or child, either or both of his parents (if wholly dependent upon him) will receive a monthly benefit equal to half his benefit rate, when they reach the age of 65.

Although the President did not spell out his specific plans with regard to the self-sustaining system of survivors' benefits which is proposed for service personnel, he said, "A military survivors' benefit system should be designed to provide supplementary benefits scaled to the earnings in excess of those covered by the old-age and survivors insurance system."

He said, "These new military benefits would supplement the payments under the old-age and survivors insurance and veterans' laws in these higher pay ranges."

First Dependents Travel To FEC From East Coast

The first group of military dependents to leave from an East Coast port for the Far East since the Department of Defense lifted a 17-month ban on dependent travel in the Pacific sailed from New York yesterday, 25 Jan., aboard the SS LaGuardia.

Meantime, Army officials reported that 2158 dependents of Army and Air Force personnel were sent to FECOM in December 1951. They added, in response to a query from THE JOURNAL, that the rate of dependent travel will be stepped up in 1952 to almost double the rate of the last months of 1951.

All 536 of the women and children who boarded the ship, dependents of servicemen stationed overseas, were bound for Japan.

New Bill For Navy Ship Construction

An expanded Navy shipbuilding program—reports of which were carried in THE JOURNAL on 19 Jan.—was confirmed this week by Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee, who introduced a bill to authorize the construction of 553 new Naval vessels and the conversion of 10 large combatant ships.

The proposed legislation would enable the Navy to begin work on its second 60,000-ton, Forrestal-class carrier, and a second atomic-powered submarine. Only last week, Navy Secretary Dan A. Kimball voiced a hope that the Navy would be able to build one new 60,000-ton carrier a year for the next ten years. Total cost of the program was set by Mr. Vinson at "approximately $1,150,000,000," and has been included in the current budget request.

Other new construction includes a 16,000-ton aircraft carrier, four destroyers, three submarines (in addition to the nuclear sub), 30 minesweepers, three destroyer escorts, two refrigerated stores ships, two tankers, 23 landing ships, 450 landing craft and 33 service craft of assorted types. On Thursday of this week, Admiral William M. Fechteler, Chief of Naval Operations, revealed that although the Navy has added 526 ships to the active fleet since Korea, only four of them have been new vessels.

Vessels to be converted under the program outlined by Mr. Vinson include two aircraft carriers of the Essex class, two light cruisers and six destroyers. The Navy has been engaged since the end of WWII on a long-range program of converting the Essex-type flattops to enable them to handle heavier aircraft, and only recently it was announced that two heavy cruisers would be converted to guided missile ships.

In introducing the bill, Mr. Vinson said, "This program is required to keep our Navy in step with new developments and to replace those ships and, particularly the small craft, which have become obsolescent and worn-out and which are no longer able to operate efficiently in our national defense."

He pointed out that the new Forrestal-class carrier is needed because "only ships of this size are capable of handling the present day large fighter and attack aircraft required for naval warfare, as well as the even heavier and larger fighter and attack aircraft which naval warfare will require and develop during the expected lifetime of these ships." Construction of the large carrier will "require approximately three and one-half years," he said.

All of the other ships included in the program will be completed in two years, the Committee Chairman said, and "No further funds should be required for the construction or conversion embodied in this bill."

Of the other new ships in the program, Mr. Vinson said:

The four destroyers "are new types capable of providing anti-submarine and anti-aircraft protection for the fast carrier striking forces."

The 16,000-ton carrier "is a small escort type" which "will have sufficient speed and will be large enough to carry new anti-submarine aircraft designed not only to locate submarines but to carry weapons with which to attack them."

The four submarines include two which "are new and improved versions of the Tang class. One is the second nuclear-powered submarine but with full submarine attack capabilities provided. The fourth submarine is the first radar picket submarine designed and built to provide a carrier striking force air screen."

The 30 minesweepers will be needed by the Navy "to combat the tremendously increased mine development and threat."

Three landing ships dock and 20 landing ships tanks are to be used by the Army and Marine Corps for amphibious operations.

Three destroyer escorts are for "anti-submarine warfare when escorting convoys."

The large number of landing craft "are replacements for obsolescent types which are no longer capable of transporting modern mechanized equipment to the beachheads," and the smaller vessels are "to replace those lost or worn out since the war."

Rubber Flight Deck For Carriers Seen Possible

Use of a new, flexible rubber flight deck for aircraft carriers is now under study by the Navy, THE JOURNAL learned this week.

Although details are secret, it is known that the main object of the research is to provide a landing base on carriers which would permit aircraft to be stripped of much of their weight by removal of the undercarriage. Planes would be catapulted from the deck, and landed back aboard the carrier by some undisclosed method.

In reply to a JOURNAL query, the Navy said only, "As concerns the Navy's interest in a flexible rubber flight deck, the subject is classified."

A British Naval officer, Rear Adm. G. P. Thomson, C.B., C.B.E., states that the flexible rubber flight deck, if it proves successful, "will very greatly increase the effectiveness of the naval air arm," and that it will reduce "the performance requirements of escort carriers."

Need for a flight deck of this type—especially on the smaller carriers—resulted from the increased weight of anti-submarine devices. Large numbers of escort type carriers were used successfully by the Navy during World War II, but their usefulness has been rapidly diminished since the war's end because of the increase in weight of aircraft.

Heavy Equipment

Heavier and larger detecting devices and anti-submarine weapons which are now being installed in Navy planes have increased their weight well beyond that of the World War II planes which were flown from escort carriers. Observers point out that if these ships are to be used effectively in any future war, they must be converted to handle the heavier planes.

At present, the Navy has only 15 escort carriers in use with the active fleet, and five of these ships (all of the Anglo-Casablanca "jeep" class) are used only as "ferry-boats" by the Military Sea Transport Service to move MDAP planes to countries abroad. The other ten are larger, 10,900-ton, vessels of the Commencement Bay-class.

In addition to these, however, the Navy has 51 other escort carriers in the inactive fleet. They include nine Commencement Bay-Class vessels, 29 "jeeps" (7,700-ton ships which were mass-produced during the War), three 12,000-ton Suwanee class ships, and 10 Bogue class 8,333-tonners.

Admiral Thomson recently pointed out that developments in the anti-submarine warfare field are making these small type carriers obsolete. He said "modern anti-submarine aircraft will be incapable of operating from ships with the small dimensions and limited speed of the escort carrier used during the war."

Future Escort Carriers

He predicts, "The escort carrier of the future will require to be a vessel of approximately the size, speed and performance of the 'Glory' class." The British Glory class carrier is constructed in two tonnages—13,190 and 13,350—with an overall length of 630-695 feet and a beam of 80 feet. All four of the U. S. Navy (CVE) escort carrier classes are smaller, as are two of the three CVL (aircraft carrier-small) classes. The U. S. escort carrier which is nearest in size to the Glory class is the 12,000-ton Suwanee class of which the Navy has only three—all inactive. Only one group of small U. S. carriers is larger, the 14,500-ton Salpêre class.

However, only this week, Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee announced that the Navy will build a new, faster 16,000-ton escort carrier. He said the ship "will have sufficient speed and will be large enough to carry new anti-submarine aircraft designed not only to locate submarines but to carry weapons with which to attack them." Increased speed of the vessel would types will enable it to launch aircraft.

Rubber Flight Decks

in any wind condition. Admiral Thomson also discusses carrier development in the December 1951 issue of The Navy, official publication of Great Britain's Navy League.

Of the rubber flight deck, he says, "Fortunately the prospect of being able to fit carriers with a flexible rubber flight deck should improve matters considerably, since landing on a rubber deck dispenses with the need for the undercarriage." He points out that the percentage of the total weight of a plane which is taken up by the undercarriage is "out of all proportion to its value."

Planes operating without undercarriages "will, of course, have to be catapulted to become airborne," he states, "but this has little disadvantage since catapulting is now becoming the standard method of launching all our latest aircraft." He adds that even though catapulting increases the launching interval to some extent, it "gives a carrier the immense asset of greater tactical freedom, because she no longer has to alter course into the wind prior to flying off."

Increase Effectiveness

The flexible rubber flight deck, "if the project proves successful," Admiral Thomson says, "will very greatly increase the effectiveness of the naval air arm." He states that it will reduce "the performance requirements of escort carriers" and will enable "fleet carriers to operate aircraft of increased range, armament and performance."

The British Admiral points out that the Glory class carriers are already "stretched to the limit in being called on to operate aircraft of a weight half as heavy again as those of six years ago and with take-off and landing speeds some 30 knots in excess of their predecessors at that time."

The article by Admiral Thomson gives rise to a belief that Britain is being kept well-abreast of developments in the U. S. Navy. Although U. S. Navy plans to convert two cruisers for guided missile use were not released here until 3 Jan., Admiral Thomson mentions the plans in his article, which was prepared for December publication. He states, "The conversion of two United States cruisers for guided missile firing may well indicate an early change in the main armament of large ships."

Teak Wood for Decks

At present, all U. S. Navy carriers are constructed with either wooden or steel decks. Another development in carrier decks was outlined late last week, however, by Rear Adm. Homer N. Wallin, Chief of the Bureau of Ships, who announced that the Navy is now using teak wood to reinforce Douglas fir flight decks on carriers.

The teak-fir combination was tested on the Navy's newest aircraft carrier, the USS Oriskany, and enthusiastically approved by BuShips experts. Admiral Wallin said its use on other wooden-deck carriers was recommended. He pointed out that "actual sea tests have shown that flight decks will last longer with teak surfaces, and will cost the Navy less for upkeep and replacement."

The earliest U. S. aircraft carriers had flight decks made entirely of teak. However, it was found that Douglas fir, a domestic wood, was suitable for the light aircraft then used. Douglas fir decking was installed on all carriers except the Midway class, which have steel flight decks.

Pay Hearings

favor the general principle of the bill for increase in pay for the Armed Forces. We must give special attention to the allowances for the lower echelons. We may have to consider a modification of the ten per cent across the board idea so that those in the lower brackets will receive a higher per cent than those in the upper brackets."

Senator Flanders (R-Vt.) said, cautiously, "I shall be in favor of the bill unless there is something about it about which I do not know at present."

Rotation Program Hailed As Success

Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg has written Senator Richard Russell (D-Ga.), Armed Services Committee Chairman, that the rotation program for military personnel from the Far East "is a record of achievement of which the Services may well be proud."

She noted that 152,304 Army officers and men have been rotated (as of 9 Jan.) and said: "The Army's problem was the biggest and, in many ways, the hardest. A magnificent job has been done."

Here are the facts on the rotation program as reported by Assistant Secretary Rosenberg:

Army

Every Army enlisted man and officer who, on 1 Jan. 1951, was in a combat division or in a direct support unit in Korea has been rotated with the exception of 80 enlisted men and 201 officers—all of them difficult-to-replace specialists. Of these, 127 officers and 17 enlisted men are awaiting replacement. All of these 17 enlisted men will be rotated this month. There are only 137 specialists (74 officers and 63 enlisted) for whom no replacements are yet available.

Air Force

No combat man is spending a second winter in Korea. Combat crews have been rotated from Korea after an average duty tour of six months.

Navy

No personnel are spending a second winter in Korea. A total of 72,000 men have been rotated. Most ships are returned to the U. S. for overhaul on the average of every seven months.

Marine Corps

All personnel in the 1st Marine Division (Reinforced) who were in Korea on 1 Jan. 1951 have been returned to the United States. All flight personnel of the 1st Marine Air Wing who were in Korea on 1 Jan. 1951 have been returned to the United States. A total of 27,991 Marines have been returned from Korea.

Reserves Released

Mrs. Rosenberg added:

"A true measure of this accomplishment of the services in instituting and carrying out their rotation programs is had when one realizes that, concurrently, the services were speeding up the release of reservists, particularly the inactive and volunteer (non-pay status) reservists who were veterans of World War II. Up to the first of this month (1 Jan. 1952) the Army had already released 162,500 reservists. The Navy had released 38,427, the Marine Corps 35,013, and the Air Force 23,000.

"The turnover problems were immense, painstaking planning was required but the services did the job on both rotation and the release of reservists at the same time. We are very gratified with this double accomplishment and particularly so because it has enabled the services to meet the expressed desires of your Committee and the Congress, and to better the programs and commitments that were submitted to you in these respects."

Medical Course Changed

The Aviation Medical Examiner Course at the USAF School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex., which was cut to six weeks in September 1950 to meet urgent needs of the expansion program, will revert to the standard 11-week session.

The change will take place when the new class convenes on 27 Jan. More than 100 officers will be enrolled.

16 Ships Get New CO's

New commanding officers have been assigned to 16 Navy vessels. They are:

- USS Rockbridge—Capt. Leonard C. Chamberlin.
- USS Magoffin—Capt. Thomas E. Chambers.
- USS Chourre—Capt. Frank F. Gill.
- USS Orion—Capt. Charlton L. Murphy, Jr.
- USS Midway—Capt. Frank O'Beirne.
- USS Pittsburgh—Capt. Harold J. Pohl.
- USS Seminole—Capt. Royal A. Wolverton.
- USS Soley—Comdr. Thomas E. McCormick, Jr.
- USS Everett F. Larson—Comdr. Arthur H. Bryant, Jr.
- USS Frank E. Evans—Comdr. Nelson D. Salmon.
- USS Renshaw—Comdr. Lodwick H. Alford.
- USS Isherwood—Comdr. Paul H. Backus.
- USS Waldron—Comdr. Carl R. Cunningham, Jr.
- USS Hopewell—Lt. Comdr. James B. Hildreth.
- USS Darby—Lt. Comdr. Jackson L. Morton.
- USS Latimer—Lt. Comdr. Floyd D. Parrish (NR).

Create Armament Center, Shift ADRC Officers

Reassignment of key personnel and the redesignation of the Armament Test Division at Eglin AFB, Fla., are announced by Lt. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Commanding General of the Air Research Development Command, Baltimore, Md.

Maj. Gen. Fred R. Dent, Jr., Commanding General of the Wright Air Development Center, Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio, will be reassigned to an important command outside the Air Research and Development Command.

Maj. Gen. Donald L. Putt, who has recently been assigned to the Air Research and Development Command as vice commander, will temporarily assume command of the Wright Air Development Center as an additional duty.

Brig. Gen. Albert Boyd, commanding general of the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards AFB, Calif., will move to the Wright Air Development Center as vice commander.

Col. J. Stanley Holtzner, Assistant Deputy for Development, Headquarters Air Research and Development Command, will become commanding officer of the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards AFB.

The Armament Test Division at Eglin AFB will be known as the Air Force Armament Center.

Composing the Center will be the armament test facilities recently assigned to the Air Research and Development Command from the Air Proving Ground, which continues to operate the other functions at Eglin AFB. The armament facilities involved are: Headquarters 6570th Chemical and Ordnance Test Group; 6570th Ordnance Test Squadron, and the 6570th Chemical Test Squadron.

Seven Research Centers

The reassignment of the armament test facilities is part of the Air Force's program to unify its research and development activities under one organization, the Air Research and Development Command. With the addition of the Air Force Armament Center, this Command now has seven Centers working on air research and development activities. They are:

The Rome Air Development Center, Griffiss AFB, Rome, N. Y., where experimental work on electronic equipment is performed; the Air Force Cambridge, Mass., Research Center, where scientists and technicians study the existence and behavior of physical phenomena occurring on the earth and in the atmosphere and their effect on Air Force operations; the Air Force Missile Test Center at Patrick AFB, Cocoa, Fla., where missiles and rockets are tested on a long-range proving ground extending to Puerto Rico. A shorter test range for rockets and missiles is located at this Center's Holloman Air Force Base at Alamogordo, New Mexico.

The Wright Air Development Center, where research, development, and tests of USAF materiel, including guided missiles, aircraft, associated equipment, components and systems are accomplished; the Arnold Engineering Development Center at Tullahoma, Tenn., now in the process of construction, where unsurpassed test facilities will be available for developing and evaluating supersonic aircraft and missiles, and their propulsion systems; and, the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards AFB, Edwards, Calif., where flight tests of aircraft, power plants, components, and allied equipment take place.

Research Funds in Budget

The President's budget for fiscal year 1953 seeks $525,000,000 for Research and Development in the Air Force, the largest single category being for guided missiles ($110,381,000). For aircraft research, $74,071,000 is asked.

Council Approves Dental Units

The Army Surgeon General has been notified that the dental departments of Madigan Army Hospital, Tacoma, Wash., and Percy Jones Army Hospital, Battle Creek, Mich., have been approved by the Council on Hospital Dental Services of the American Dental Association.

Deputy Sec. Foster Stresses Family Role

The important role played by the families of military personnel in building good relations with foreign nations was stressed by Deputy Secretary of Defense William C. Foster in a graduation address this week before the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va.

Mr. Foster noted that a great number of those graduating from the College are slated for overseas assignments. For them and their families he had this message:

"If you are an officer of a U. S. service your actions and your example will be taken as those of the United States itself. The days of military occupation are drawing to a close but our responsibilities overseas have created an even greater demand upon our officers. We have bases on foreign soil.

"We have military defense aid groups in 18 different countries; and each of them is quite different. It becomes your duty wherever you may be to understand the people among whom you serve, to accept the fact that they may be different and their right to that difference. You cannot carry the environment of any American community with you. You cannot have ham and eggs for breakfast wherever you may be.

"Standards set overseas by officers and their families—and I cannot stress too much the emphasis upon the families—will not only influence our own men in the ranks but will win or lose friends for us among the people where we temporarily dwell on whose support in the common defense of the free world we so greatly need.

"Let me address myself especially to the wives who are here to share in the honor of the graduation of their husbands. Your respect for the manners and the customs of the peoples among whom you will be quartered will be of great value to your husband in the performance of the duties assigned him. In some countries, local living and working conditions may compare favorably with American standards. In some, they may be relatively primitive. Some assignments may carry with them certain hazards and if difficulties arise, I know you will conduct yourselves with the traditional courage of service wives, of the army wives on the Old Indian frontier or of their more modern granddaughters who found themselves in Berlin during the recent airlift.

"In Berlin, the hazard was great. Wives were offered an opportunity to leave if they chose. They chose to stay and their example gave heart to the brave 'Berliners' and strengthened their determination to resist Communist aggression.

"There also will be some assignments when wives will not be able to go along with their husbands. I am sure that when you must remain behind you will do so with characteristic grace and remind yourself that they too serve who stand and wait."

U.S. Non-Coms Top Commie Field Officers, General Says

"The majority of the lowest ranking non-commissioned officers in our Army are qualified according to Chinese Communist standards to hold positions of field grade officers in the Red Army."

Maj. Gen. William A. Beiderlinden, Third Army Deputy Commander, in a recent address to the officers of Fort McClellan, Ala., gave credit for the success of the UN Forces in Korea to the high standards of leadership which the U. S. Army has consistently developed throughout its ranks.

His remarks were part of the first hour's instructions in a Fort McClellan officers course designed to further implement that high standard of leadership. Other speakers at the first of a series of lectures on various phases of Small Unit Tactics were Brig. Gen. T. F. Wessels, post commander, and Col. Joseph F. Decker, post S-3.

Nominate Army Generals

The President this week named three permanent brigadier generals to be major generals and at the same time nominated 14 permanent colonels to be permanent brigadier generals.

All of these officers were on the list of selections published in the 12 Jan. issue of THE JOURNAL, which reported three vacancies for permanent major general and 14 for permanent brigadier general. Nominated for permanent major general were Maj. Gen. Hobart F. Gay, Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and Maj. Gen. William O. Reeder. This means that Maj. Gen. Walter L. Weible is the senior officer on the list of selections.

The officers nominated for permanent one-star rank are Brigadier Generals Charles E. Loucks, Charles F. Craig, Cornelius E. Ryan, Frank A. Allen, Jr., Bryan L. Millburn, John A. Klein, John C. MacDonald, Laurin L. Williams, Samuel T. Williams, Albert C. Leiber, Boniface Campbell, John M. Lentz, Bernice M. McFadyen and Leslie D. Carter.

Senior officer on the permanent brigadier generals selection list now is Brig. Gen. Patrick H. Tansey.

Named Benning DC/S

Lt. Col. Walter Joseph Fellenz has been named deputy chief of staff of The Infantry Center at Ft. Benning, Ga. He replaced Lt. Col. Robert Runyan Linwill, who has been ordered to the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va.

Colonel Fellenz came to Ft. Benning from the Personnel and Administration Division headquarters in Heidelberg, Germany. Before being assigned to his present post, he was connected with The Infantry School Weapons Department.

He is the son of 1st Lt. (retired) and Mrs. R. A. Fellenz of 1101 Schley avenue, San Antonio, Tex.

UNITED STATES ARMY

Army Generals Confirmed

The Senate this week confirmed the nomination of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, a Corps Commander in Korea, to be a temporary lieutenant general. Also confirmed were these other nominations:

Lt. Gen. John W. Leonard, Commanding General of the XVIII Corps at Ft. Bragg, N. C., to be placed on the retired list in the grade of a three-star general.

Brig. Gen. Charles D. W. Canham to be a major general. Previously Director of Military Posts in EUCOM (where he's succeeded by Maj. Gen. W. W. Eagles, former EUCOM I. G.), General Canham will command the 82d Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N. C. He was Assistant Division Commander of the 82d before going to EUCOM in June 1949.

Col. Frank Dorn and Col. Willard K. Liebel to be temporary brigadier generals.

General Leonard, who was 62 on 25 Jan., retires 31 Jan. after completing 36 years service. He has been at Ft. Bragg since September 1950, first as Commanding General of V Corps and from 21 May 1951 as Commanding General of the XVIII Airborne Corps.

Another three-star officer retires on 31 Jan. He is Lt. Gen. LeRoy Lutes, Commanding General of the Fourth Army, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., who will be succeeded by Lt. Gen. William M. Hoge, until recently a Corps Commander in Korea.

Finance Officers Needed

Faced with an increased workload, the Finance Corps has openings for company grade officers with finance experience, it was announced this week by Maj. Gen. Bickford E. Sawyer, Army Chief of Finance. A college degree, with a major in accounting, and a minimum of two years' experience along accounting lines, are the basic qualifications outlined by General Sawyer.

General Sawyer pointed out that it is not contemplated at this time to call individuals involuntarily to active duty. He is of the opinion, however, that there are numerous Reserve officers who would volunteer for active duty with the Finance Corps if they were aware of the need for their services at this time.

May Release Selections

Response to queries put to officials at the Pentagon this week prompt the prediction that the Army will release in the near future the names of officers on recommended lists for temporary promotions.

Currently, there are 838 on the eligible list for promotion to colonel, 1635 to lieutenant colonel, 1341 to major and 3044 to captain.

The first list to be released probably will contain the names of officers chosen for advancement to captain. It is possible that at the same time some actual promotions will be made, with the remainder of the selections to be advanced as vacancies occur.

The separation from active duty of hundreds of Reserve officers beginning this Spring will create numerous vacancies.

The recommended lists will be made available upon completion of final selection action by boards which are considering the last group of officers in the "5 per cent" category—that is, officers outside of the zone of consideration named as particularly outstanding.

When these final selections are completed, the recommended lists will be complete. Then, according to present plans, the lists will be released.

The Army consistently has made a practice of releasing names of officers on recommended lists for advancement to higher rank as part of a policy to give as much personnel information as possible to the field. Therefore, there was some surprise when the eligible lists for advancement to the higher temporary ranks were not immediately made public; but this is made understandable now with the disclosure that the "5 per cent" selections have not been concluded.

Halt W. O. Appointments

The Army has ordered a temporary suspension of appointments of warrant officers in the Army of the United States or in the Organized Reserve Corps with concurrent call to active service. The action was made effective as of 11 Jan.

The suspension results from the fact that current allocations exceed authorizations.

The Army said that plans for resumption of the program will be announced at a later date after new personnel authorizations and quotas are developed.

Procurement will continue, however, for warrant officers in the radar maintenance and repair and helicopter pilot MOS categories.

Heads Combat Command

Col. Edward G. Farrand has been assigned as commander of First Armored's Combat Command "B" at Ft. Hood, Tex. He was on duty previously in the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, Logistics Division, in Washington, D. C.

Another newcomer to Headquarters, CC "B" is executive officer, Lt. Col. Herman R. Siemers, recently reassigned after serving 38 months in the American Far Eastern Command. Most of his time there was as Intelligence officer in Headquarters, Eighth Army, Korea.

AER-ARS Campaign Success

Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, USA-Ret., Director of the Army Emergency Relief, reports that the 1951 joint fund campaign of Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society is closing with the most gratifying results. The total contributions amount to $554,517.42.

The largest single contribution was made by the Far East Command, which amounted to $280,505.00. Of this amount the Eighth Army in Korea contributed over $137,000.00. The European Command contributed a total of $52,801.96. Other major overseas commands, namely, US Army Alaska, US Army Caribbean, US Army Forces Antilles, Marianas-Bonins Command, Trieste US Troops, US Forces in Austria and the various Military Missions and Army Attaches to foreign governments generously responded with contributions totaling $31,282.72. Generous contributions were made by posts or commands within the six Continental Army areas and the Military District of Washington, to include the Department of the Army, amounting to $189,927.74.

A joint campaign is conducted each year to raise in a single campaign the funds necessary to permit both organizations to operate, without incurring an annual deficit and to keep the Army informed concerning their work. Through the campaign, the aims, accomplishments and capabilities of both organizations are made known. Individual wallet-size cards of instructions are furnished all posts for distribution to every member of the command, explaining simply and concisely the financial assistance which he and members of his family may receive in an emergency from Army Emergency Relief. Posters containing similar information are distributed to all posts or commands for permanent display on bulletin boards. Information pamphlets designed primarily for units are distributed which also explain the mission of Army Relief Society, an entirely separate organization, but closely affiliated with Army Emergency Relief. Army Relief Society limits its assistance to needy widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel and receives a proportionate share of all contributions based upon its expenditures for assistance as compared to the amount disbursed by Army Emergency Relief.

During 1951 Army Emergency Relief, in supplementing the assistance rendered to Army personnel and their dependents by the American Red Cross, disbursed over $1,100,000 for assistance to more than 12,000 members of the Army and their families in the form of loans and grants as compared to $386,000 in 1947, $550,000 in 1948 and approximately $700,000 in both 1949 and 1950. This marked increase during the past year in the amount of assistance rendered over the preceding four years was due mainly to the expansion of the Army, with its attendant dislocations of family life; sudden changes in permanent stations of units and individuals and to the conflict in Korea. The cases in which assistance was rendered included members of all components of the Army on active duty regardless of whether members of the Regular Army, National Guard or Organized Reserves and those inducted into the Army. Army Relief Society expended approximately $75,000 during the past year in providing assistance to widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel who were in need.

"Out of thin air" comes the

in Buick history

No, we didn't have to build a new engine to do it.

We took Buick's Fireball Engine—which is a valve-in-head that lets you make the most of high compression.

We drew on 12 patient years of Buick carburetion research—an experience which few can equal and no one can top.

And the results in words of one syllable are: we came up with more might, more miles, from gas—right out of thin air, in more ways than one.

When you talk about "miles per gallon" you naturally think of fuel, because that's what you buy.

But air's free—and for every gallon of gasoline, a busy engine can gulp more than 8,000 gallons of air.

The problem has always been—to deliver air in the right proportions, throughout the full range of speeds at which you drive your car.

A conventional carburetor—big enough to supply the rush of air needed at full throttle—can be wasteful in stop-and-go driving.

A carburetor sized only for thrift in city traffic literally smothers your engine when you really give it the gun.

So Buick engineers came up with the Airpower carburetor—a four-barrel automatic—and here's how it works.

When you want to loaf along, two barrels are working, two stay closed. There's even a governor that keeps them shut during warm-up periods. And you get a low-speed thrift and smoothness that's out of this world.

As you pick up speed, the "stand-bys" smoothly come into play—feeding not just more gas, but more air too—which means that you keep on getting maximum power from each drop of fuel.

You have 170 effortless horsepower when you need it—a tremendous reserve of power ready to go into instant action at the nudge of your toe.

You have the satisfaction of knowing that you get this power with a frugal use of gas. At 40 you use less gas than you formerly used at 30. And, where the law allows, you can step from 40 to 60 in less than 8 seconds.

That's the story of Airpower carburetion in facts and figures.

But no facts and figures can tell you the breath-taking joy of heading for new horizons in a great-powered new ROADMASTER out on the road.

When can you do that? Don't be surprised if your Buick dealer tells you "line forms to the right." He's proudly displaying one of the greatest arrays of new cars that you've seen in years.

Dependent's Benefits

Government benefits available to the principal dependents of deceased Marines are outlined in a publication which has been prepared by the Education and Personal Affairs Office, Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N. C.

Written by Master Sgt. John Bois, personal affairs chief at the air station, the pamphlet discusses burial information, insurance, death gratuities, pensions, hospitalization and medical care, and ten other categories of dependent's benefits. A recommendation that it be printed and distributed throughout the Marine Corps has been made to the Marine Commandant.

In a preface to the publication, Capt. L. R. Schwartz, Personal Affairs Officer at Cherry Point, explains that "When a casualty occurs, the widow of the deceased suddenly finds herself confronted with a new and strange situation... which may cause a state of mental helplessness," and that a great contributing factor to this state of mind is a lack of information on the part of the widow. He states that the dependents' pamphlet is intended to "provide for all principal dependents, a source of information now, when they are mentally composed and retentive."

DSM to General Smith

Maj. Gen. O. P. Smith, Commanding General of the Marine Base at Camp Pendleton, Calif., has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by the Army for his leadership of the 1st Marine Division in Korea.

The Medal was presented to General Smith by Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, Third Army Corps Commander, in ceremonies at Camp Pendleton.

The former commander of the 1st Marine Division said "the accomplishments set forth in the citation were only made possible by the devotion to duty and self-sacrifices of some 20,000 officers and men" of the division.

Need Marine 2d Lt's

The Marine Corps revealed this week that it is short on second lieutenants.

Commanding officers were advised to consider "at this time all eligible personnel for recommendation for appointment to commissioned rank under the provisions of Marine Corps Memorandums No. 72-51 and 85-51."

A directive from the Marine Commandant, General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., said that the shortage of second lieutenants makes the move "imperative."

Commands Pendleton Bn

Col. Robert C. Burns, USMC, has succeeded Col. A. B. Swenceski as Commanding Officer, Headquarters Battalion, Marine Barracks, Camp Pendleton, Calif. He reported to his new assignment from Japan, where he had commanded a Marine provisional casual group. Colonel Swenceski has been assigned to the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va.

Marine Nominations

President Truman this week nominated Maj. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, USMC, to have the grade, rank, pay and allowances of lieutenant general while serving as assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps. Although the newly appointed assistant commandant returned to Washington from Korea last week, Marine Corps Headquarters has not announced the date on which he will assume his new duties.

At the same time, the President nominated Maj. Gen. William P. T. Hill, Quartermaster General of the Marine Corps, to continue in that assignment for a period of two years from 1 Feb. 1952. General Hill, who will be 57 next month, has served as Quartermaster General since 1944.

Also nominated were 12 women officers of the Marine Corps Reserve for permanent appointment to the grade of second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. They are:

Hajek, Virginia A. Parker, Eileen F
Hilgart, Valeria F. Pratt, Jane
McElaney, Ruth E. Sullivan, Mary E
McLamore, Sara F. Wenner, Miriam B
McMillan, Shirley A. Wolpert, Louise W
O'Hara, Eleanor M. Young, Phyllis J

Nominated for permanent appointment to the grade of captain for limited duty: Ray M. Burrill.

Marines to Kaneohe

Concurrent with the Marine Corps plans to move an air group and a regimental combat team to Kaneohe, Hawaii, supply personnel are being assigned to the new Marine Corps Air Station there.

Maj. Godfrey H. Reed, former assistant station supply officer at the Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, Calif., will become station supply officer of the new Kaneohe base.

CWO Jack R. Nielson, former substitute commissary store officer at El Toro, is also scheduled for Kaneohe duty, and M/Sgt. Ralph L. Prestwood will be NCO in-charge of the issue commissary at the Hawaiian base. Sergeant Prestwood was formerly NCO in-charge of the commissary store at El Toro.

Prizes to Marines

Almost two thousand dollars in cash and prizes will go to Marine high-scorers in the annual M-1 rifle qualifications this year as the result of a competition established by the official Marine Corps Leatherneck magazine.

More than 200 prizes will be given including cash, Model 70 Winchester rifle subscriptions to the magazine, medals and certificates. They will be presented quarterly and also on a yearly basis.

VIPs Visit Cherry Point

The Second Marine Air Wing and personnel of the MCAS, Cherry Point, N. C., played host to 35 businessmen, industrialists, and dignitaries of the Northeastern United States last week.

Members of the visiting delegation, mostly prominent business and industrial leaders of New York, visited the air station as the second stop during a three-day orientation tour of military bases of the East Coast.

The visitors were greeted by a staff of high-ranking officers of the station, headed by Col. Robert D. Moser, Wing Inspector.

The delegation was greeted at lunch by Maj. Gen. Thomas J. Cushman, Commanding General, Aircraft, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, and Second Marine Air Wing; Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Megee, Commanding General of the Air Station; and Brig. Gen. William G. Manley, Deputy Commander, Second Marine Air Wing.

The visitors inspected Cherry Point's Ground Controlled Intercept Squadron 6, Marine Helicopter Squadron 261, and four of the fighter aircraft in use at the MCAS — the 7F7 "Tigercat," radar-equipped all-weather and night fighter, the TO2 "Shooting Star," jet transition fighter and trainer; the F9F "Panther," jet fighter; and the F2H "Banshee," jet accelerated consideration of Reserve lieutenant colonels and majors (that is, promotion from below the zone) as set forth in paragraph 9153-3 of the Marine Corps Manual. In this connection, Marine Corps Headquarters said that such recommendations must be received by 30 Jan. and 15 Feb., as appropriate.

Commanding officers of Naval vessels, Naval stations, Marine barracks and battalions or higher command echelons of the Regular Naval Establishment, in addition to those prescribed in par. 9153-3 of the Manual, "are authorized to initiate recommendations for accelerated consideration of Reserve officers for promotion," the announcement said.

Marine SDO Applicants

Applications for Supply Duty Only designations within the Marine Corps are now being accepted by Marine Corps Headquarters.

Although no definite dates have been set for convening boards to select officers for SDO assignment, the Marine Corps has announced that it wishes to bring its lists of eligible officers up to date.

Officers who meet the requirements set forth in Par. 4350, Part F, Vol. I of the Marine Corps Manual, and who desire SDO designations should submit requests during the next three months, but prior to 30 April.

Officers of the permanent grades of captain, major, lieutenant colonel and colonel, may, upon their application and with the approval of the Secretary of the Navy, be designated for supply duty only, provided they meet the qualifications set forth in the above reference.

"Definite dates" for convening SDO boards "cannot be determined" at this time, the Marine Corps said, "because of statutory and administrative restrictions based on the authorized officer strength of the Marine Corps in addition to actual attrition factors."

Boards are convened "from time to time," however, Headquarters said, for the purpose of recommending individual officers.

As of 31 Dec., the Corps had 157 officers serving on active duty in SDO assignments. They include one major general (Maj. Gen. William P. T. Hill, Quartermaster General of the Marine Corps), five brigadier generals, 35 colonels, 52 lieutenant colonels, 51 majors and 13 captains. They are:

NEW WATER-BASED WEAPONS

Seaplane research is bringing new phantoms to life in Stevens Tech's towing tanks, testing ground for the U. S. Navy Marlin's advanced hull design.

Delicately instrumented models prove today's dreams for tomorrow's air-sea power at the Experimental Towing Tank,
Stevens Institute of Technology.

AN instrument-covered seaplane model knifes through the waters of a Stevens Tech towing tank. A Naval Bureau of Aeronautics researcher pores over plans for a jet-powered, swept-wing flying boat. A Martin engineer makes dreams take wings on his drawing board. And, step by step, planes that combine water-based mobility with land-based speed come closer to reality!

Latest product of seaplane research teamwork, today's advanced Martin P5M-1 Marlins add new sinews to our Navy's anti-submarine forces. Their performance is in the tradition of the history-making Martin seaplane flight to Catalina in 1912, the famous Martin China Clipper, the dramatic rescues of Mariner patrol planes and the record-load-carrying Mars flying boats of World War II.

Today's seaplane research promises to make their jet-powered successors tomorrow even more potent weapons in America's arsenal! THE GLENN L. MARTIN COMPANY, Baltimore 3, Maryland.

U. S. AIR FORCE

USAF University Vacancies

The USAF Institute of Technology Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, is currently considering applications from Regular Air Force officers to fill 55 available spaces in Business Administration and Advanced Management courses at Harvard and the University of Pittsburgh.

Enrollments will be made in September 1952.

"Word has been erroneously spread that Reserve officers are eligible for these two programs," a USAFIT spokesman pointed out. "This is not the case. Though Reserves are now eligible for most technical and scientific educational programs sponsored by the Air Force within civilian schools, only Regular officers may apply for the business courses at Harvard and Pitt."

The Pittsburgh course, titled Air Force Advanced Management, runs a full year, September through August. Officers must be serving in field grade and be under 40 years of age.

Captains and above, under 37, are eligible for the program at Harvard, which is of 21 months duration.

Colonel Strength Reported

Statistics made available this week showed that on 31 Dec. 1951 the Air Force had 3654 colonels on duty, a net gain of 736 for the first half of fiscal year 1952.

The increase resulted from 738 promotions, five Army colonels detailed to duty with Air Force, 1 transfer from Army to Air Force (MSC), 4 National Guard colonels ordered to active service and 2 officers appointed in the Regular Air Force.

For the same period, 16 colonels were retired, 27 were relieved from active duty, 1 resigned, 1 transferred to the Army (MC), 5 were relieved from detail to the AF and returned to their Service, 40 colonels were promoted to brigadier general and 6 died.

Leader for First WAF Band

Capt. Mary Belle Johns Nissly — the first woman in any military service to win appointment as a warrant officer — has arrived at Lackland AFB, Tex., to direct the first WAF band.

Captain Nissly, who was also the conductor of the first WAC Band at Ft. Des Moines, Iowa, in 1942, was graduated from the Army Music School in 1943.

Upon discovery that no legal authority existed for her appointment as a warrant officer, the rank held by band directors, special legislation was introduced in Congress and after passage of the bill in 1944, she became the first woman warrant officer.

The WAF Band at Lackland was formed under the supervision of Chief Warrant Officer Samuel Kurtz.

Gen. Timberlake Named

The Air Force has transferred the Directorate of Installations, Deputy Chief of Staff, Materiel, to Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations. Maj. Gen. Patrick W. Timberlake, USAF, was appointed an additional Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations.

New Rules for Regular Appointments Listed

The Air Force this week released preliminary information concerning changes in the system of appointing Regular Air Force officers. The changes, to be announced in a revised version of AFR 36-5, will go into effect on 1 April.

Until 31 March, applications under present regulations will be accepted, Air Force officials stated.

Here are the major changes in the appointment of Regular officers:

(1) The Air Force will discontinue, on a gradual basis, appointment to Regular status of distinguished graduates of the Aviation Cadet, Officer Candidate, and Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps program. Regular appointments of Aviation Cadet and Officer Candidate School distinguished graduates will continue for those who enter training before 1 April, 1952. Regular appointments will continue to be given also to distinguished AF ROTC cadets graduated prior to 1 Feb. 1953. Furthermore, distinguished military students nominated and selected for Regular Air Force appointments prior to 1 Feb. 1953, and subsequently designated, as distinguished graduates, will not be affected.

(2) The Air Force will select all applicants for Regular appointment on a competitive basis after 18 months of active commissioned service. Distinguished graduates will be given special consideration. The active duty tour will afford a fuller knowledge of applicants' abilities when selections are made. At least six months of the required 18 months' active commissioned service must be in other than a student or travel status. Present regulations call for 12 months of previous active commissioned service.

(3) The maximum age has been reduced to 26½ years. Formerly the limit was either 30 years as of 1 July of the year of application, or 27 years, plus the time in active commissioned service since 31 Dec., 1947, not to exceed 5 years.

(4) After 1 April, Reserve officers must be on active duty to apply. Presently, inactive Reserve officers are also eligible.

(5) Selections will be made twice a year. Appointments in certain professional fields are not affected by the changes.

Air Guard Pilots Needed

Approximately 300 direct Air National Guard commissions in the grade of second lieutenant are now open to eligible young men who wish to enter pilot training. Maj. Gen. Earl T. Ricks, Chief of the National Guard Bureau's Air Force Division, has announced.

Under the program, those commissioned will take the regular one-year pilot training course in the Air Force in their commissioned grade. As presently planned, these officers will return to the Air National Guard after completing flying training.

Col. Persons ADC PIO

Col. William E. Persons, Jr., has assumed the position of Public Information Officer for the Air Defense Command, it is announced by General Benjamin W. Chidlaw, Commanding General of ADC, Ent AFB, Colo.

Colonel Persons arrived in Colorado Springs from Hamilton AFB, Calif., where he was the Inspector General for the Western Air Defense Force. He is the son of Col. W. E. Persons, USA-Ret.

naturally worsen rather than improve." The new system, General Kuter said, will enable the Air Force for the first time to maintain a valid inventory of skills, and to maintain the inventory by occupational fields.

"In addition," he explained, "it will permit us to correct deficiencies in individual classifications we know to exist in our current procedures. Correct classification is a basic necessity if we are to utilize our officers in a manner to bring out their maximum talents and abilities."

General Kuter emphasized the classification system must be implemented "with thorough honesty and fairness to the Air Force first and to the individual second."

A time table of implementation of the new system presented at the conference, January follows:

1. Distribution of Air Force Letter 36-1, "Officer Conversion Procedures," 7 Jan.-1 March.

2. Distribution of booklet "Officer Classification System" and Classification Data form to all officers, 23 Jan.-15 Feb.

3. Initial distribution of Air Force Manual 36-1, "Officer Classification Manual." (Normal distribution of Air Force Manual 36-1, 10 Mar.-30 June), 1 Mar.-15 Mar.

4. Reclassification of all officers on Active Military Service, 15 Mar.-15 June.

5. Conversion of all non T/O Tables (based on 30 June PAV strengths), 1 Apr.-15 May.

6. Special statistical report on conversion, to include Primary AFS and Additional AFS's, approx. 1 June.

7. Reorganization under new T/O's: Reorganization under new T/D's where general orders are required, 15 June.

8. Deletion of all SSN's from Items 12 and 24 of Form 66's: Determination of Duty AFSC and entry in Items 12 and 28 of Form 66's: UPON TWX NOTIFICATION FROM HQ USAF—estimated to be 1-15 June.

9. First complete statistical report by AFS-AFSC, to include: Authorizations by AFS, Primary AFS, Duty AFS and Additional AFS's.

In addition to General Kuter, other speakers at the meeting included Brig. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, Director of Personnel Planning, Col. Robert B. Miller,

Chief, Career Development Division, Col. John C. Evers, Chief, Officer Career Planning Branch, Col. Robert M. Stillman, Chief, Officers' Assignment Division, Col. Howard J. AF Aide to Commerce

Nils A. Lennartson, special assistant to Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter and Deputy Director of Air Force Public Relations, will become Director of Public Information for the Department of Commerce on 1 Feb.

Named To AEC Post

President Truman this week nominated Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert to be an Atomic Energy Commissioner for a term extending to 30 June 1954.

As was pointed out in an article in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, Mr. Zuckert has been Assistant Secretary since 26 Sept. 1947. Previously, he served as special assistant to Assistant Secretary of War for Air W. Stuart Symington from February 1946 until the establishment of the Air Force in 1947.

During World War II, Mr. Zuckert, 50, served as a lieutenant, junior grade, in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

Mr. Zuckert's principal Air Force duties were in the field of management, military and civilian personnel policies, including the Long-Range Plan for the Reserve Forces, financial management program, development of organizational policy, and supervision of the Air Force's contract financing program.

He served on the Committee set up in July, 1948, by the then Secretary of Defense James Forrestal to establish a unified court martial code for the military services.

"Our danger will increase if our enemies feel that there is any doubt about our willingness to keep strong. It will decrease if they are convinced that we will not relax our defenses and that we propose to maintain our national security."—SECRETARY OF DEFENSE ROBERT A. LOVETT.

Contributory Retirements. We believe the President was ill-advised in including in his Budget Message this week a recommendation that Congress give consideration to the institution of a contributory system of retirement for personnel of the Armed Forces.

As a matter of fact, a thorough study of such a plan was made only three years ago by the Hook Commission, composed of highly qualified civilians. Their conclusion was that such a system would result only in huge extra expenses for administrative and clerical personnel to handle the fund. In this connection, one recalls the experience with government insurance, wherein it was discovered that it was cheaper to give a $10,000 death gratuity than it was to administer a paid insurance system by pay roll deductions.

Congress shouldn't be misled, either, by a comparison with the Civil Service's contributory retirement system. As originally enacted in 1920, this plan provided for a contribution of 2½ per cent from the salary of each employee. At the time it was instituted, Civil Service employees were being paid special bonuses, which started in 1917 at 5 per cent and were subsequently increased to 10 per cent and then to stated higher amounts until the classification act of 1923 set an increased base pay for all such workers. However, the 2½ per cent deduction was only a starter. In 1926 it was raised to 3½ per cent, in 1942 to 5 per cent, and in 1948 it was boosted to 6 per cent.

The suggestion is only another evidence of the growing tendency to require Service personnel to pay out of their own pockets for what is rightfully an obligation of the government and the people. First evidence of this was in the proposed survivors benefit plan wherein officers and enlisted personnel would be required to pay for pensions to their dependents after they have given their lives for their country. This inevitably would lead to a decrease and abolition of the present small government pensions. The same would be true with a contributory retirement system. It might start as a joint operation with service personnel and the government each contributing to the fund, but would lead eventually to increased payments by the individuals and less contributions by the government.

If the Department of Defense puts legislative processing in high gear, it can send the warrant officer promotion bill to Capitol Hill one year late to the day. The bill was promised originally 1 February 1951.

Loss of Judge Patterson. The Armed Services have had no more devoted supporter or conscientious administrator than the late Judge Robert P. Patterson. He served in the ranks on the Mexican border in 1916, later earning his commission and serving through World War I. In July 1940 when he was appointed Assistant Secretary of War, it was typical of him that he was found attending a refresher course at Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y. For seven years he stayed with the War Department, being promoted to Under Secretary and finally to Secretary of War. All who worked with him loved him. His quiet, unassuming manner covered a strong, forceful mind that could not be denied its objectives. His contributions to the build-up of the Army and to the winning of the war were legion. Most of the war years he was in charge of procurement and administered the expenditure of billions of dollars in such a way as to win and hold the respect and confidence of Congress and the people. After he retired from public life and returned to his law practice, Judge Patterson continued his deep interest in military matters and spoke out whenever he felt the Services needed his support. His untimely and horrible death is a shock and a loss to the Nation.

Blow to Retired Personnel

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I note that in the discussions in the Service Pay Bill several references were made to cut increase only in those items that pertain directly to the cost-of-living, such as rental, subsistence, and quarters allowances, etc. I would like to call attention to the fact that this would leave retired personnel, certainly all retired officers, out in the cold. The latter group were shorn of all allowances upon retirement; their retired pay is based on their base pay only, and they are certainly taking it on the chin at every increase in price of subsistence, rent, clothing or anything else.

Belated "Break" For Navy MSC

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It's about time the Pentagon did something to bolster the morale of officers of the Navy Medical Service Corps. A sad state of affairs exists when the senior MSC officer of the Navy will reach statutory retirement age without ever having had the opportunity to be considered for promotion from commander to captain. According to your article (19 Jan.), the Navy is finally going to give us a break. Here's hoping that a bill reaches Congress before it's too late for action this session.

Ballots for Service Families

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I hope THE JOURNAL gets behind the problem of providing ballots for members of the armed forces. "... and their dependents," should be included in the study by the American Political Science Association.

My wife and I would like to regain our full citizenship status. I cast my last ballot in 1940; she cast hers in 1944. Since then, we have been disfranchised by being unable to meet the registration requirements of our home State or of the State in which we were stationed. We were too far away to cast a reasonably intelligent vote on home issues; and, as transients, I don't think we should interfere in local politics. But

SERVICE HUMOR

Edwin A. Speakman, Vice Chairman of the Research and Development Board tells a story concerning a group of submariners who were discussing the merits of the new schnorkel type submarine which can stay under water for 90 days. The cook happened to be present and remarked, "I would like one of those smart scientists to tell me what they would do with 90 days garbage." Another member of the crew, after adjusting his seat a safe distance from the cook, replied, "Why we would eat it, just the same as we do now."

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—

The Japanese are renewing their attacks all along the Bataan Peninsula. Enemy reinforcements are now being landed in Lingayen Gulf and Subic Bay. The entire Japanese 14th Army, together with a number of other units, is now in Luzon.

50 Years Ago—

Asked by the House Military Committee as to the system of interchangeability of officers adopted in the last Army bill, the Chief of Ordnance said "It has been a complete failure. You cannot well expect that you can take a man from the cavalry or infantry and put him into a depot where he would have the stores to actually inquire about and buy."

85 Years Ago—

Despite our pacific Monroe Doctrines and theories of isolation from European quarrels, it daily becomes more manifest that we are by no means safe from having a foreign war pushed upon us without our will. The revolutionary agencies of steam and electricity, the annihilation of distances by the rapidity of modern travel, and the recent changes in the art of war menace to deprive us of that immunity from international contests which we have coveted, expected, and for half a century enjoyed.

we have definite opinions about national leadership, mink coats, deficit spending, etc., and would like to express them—via the ballot.

From what I have been able to observe, few service men are able to retain the vote after leaving their home State. For that reason, I don't think the "Armed Forces vote" is given much consideration by politicians. It's a shame too, because most men in uniform are reasonably informed on national and international affairs and could cast a well-considered ballot—some wise-guy might add, "... and that ain't what's wanted."

Questions "Management Engineering"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In reference to the article "Comptroller of the Army," printed in THE JOURNAL, 22 Dec., the thing is cleverly done, the part of the article on the front page makes just enough sense to lead on the unsuspecting reader, into the quicksands of insignificance in the second column; momentum then carries him over into the third and he goes down for the last time.

Who can tell what "management engineering," "integration of program review and analysis," and "improve over-all organization and basic processes" mean? These all occur in the first fourteen lines of the second column. They remind one of an article on the Turbo-Encabulator which appeared in various engineering journals several months ago, and which was a bare-faced hoax, written for fun.

As an ordinary reader I deplore the meaningless language; as a taxpayer I resent the spending of my money on this apparently unnecessary bureau; and as a soldier I think the bright young men trying to make jobs out of it should be doing something useful, like target practice. The tendency in the Army in the past 10 years has been to overstaff—to pile up administrative agencies and echelons at the top. Witness the number of people in the Pentagon now as compared with that in the middle of World War II. Now we are treated to the spectacle of an office which can't even be described in language understandable to a college graduate.

COLONEL, USA-RET.

EDITORIAL comment on the pay increase for military personnel was generally favorable this week, with some publications urging the Senate to restore a July 1951 retroactive date when it votes on the measure.

In the Christian Science Monitor, Richard L. Strout says if the measure had been opened to ordinary debate, nothing would have prevented making the wage increase retroactive to 1 July 1951. "Some members," he also states, "would have preferred a selective increase to provide higher combat pay for soldiers actually engaged in Korean fighting." He points out that the "job of formulating and refining the measure goes over to the Senate, notably to the Senate Armed Services Committee," which is captained by the exceptionally able Senator Richard B. Russell (D) of Georgia... considered by many the most powerful single member of Congress."

Naval Affairs, the official publication of the Fleet Reserve Association, also points to the fact that the bill did not contain the retroactive feature, and states "It is hoped that when the Senate acts upon this bill it will insert the retroactive feature to July 1, 1951."

Opposition to the pay increase is voiced by the Oregon Statesman, Salem, Ore., which says "the higher cost of living, on which the increase is said to be based, largely goes over the heads of enlisted men because they are furnished most of their living: subsistence, clothing, shoes, housing."

The element of humor is injected into the comment by Ollie Crawford in the Philadelphia Inquirer. He says the money a buck private gets "isn't much, but the way the world goes, it looks as if the job is steady."

The Senate is encouraged to approve the Kilday bill "or a reasonable facsimile of it" by The Washington Evening Star which states that "since Congress saw fit to grant a 10 per cent salary raise for civil service employees last year, it could not in good conscience refuse a like grant to the Nation's fighting forces."

Criticism of the measure is offered by the Indianapolis Star which favors increased allowances for dependents so that enlisted men and junior officers can meet cost-of-living problems. "Instead it takes the form of a flat across-the-board boost that substantially rewards the high brass and gives teen-age draftees money they do not need, while failing to meet the problems facing many servicemen with families."

German Arms Plans Well Received

WEST GERMANY's first cautious official remarks about the planning of defense forces to be raised by the Bonn government, as soon as permitted by the expected "contractual agreement," met with friendly reception in West Germany itself and also among the western Allies.

As a result, the first reference to an initial volunteer force of 60,000 men, carefully screened to assure that they are soldiers instead of Nazi zealots, was followed this week by a much fuller declaration, viz., that around the initial force of trained volunteers would be built up, by selective service from the age brackets of 19-21, an establishment of 300,000 to 400,000 men.

The target is a 12-division force, such as has been repeatedly envisaged as the West German contribution, whether to General Eisenhower's North Atlantic Treaty Organization or to its projected component, the European Army. To military people acquainted with the conventional tables of organization that spread of 100,000 is suggestive; the minimum total would allow for fewer than 170,000 non-divisional troops (300,000 minus 12 x 11,000) whereas the maximum would allow for nearly 270,000 of that broad category, however the number might be distributed between combat and service elements.

At the moment there is larger anxiety over some indiscreet reports about the size of the tactical air force which West Germany may be permitted and encouraged to raise as its contribution to the Western-Defense pool; a newspaper dispatch which appears to have originated in a well-informed source refers to 1,000 planes but, while this is commonly believed to have been a most tentative figure for planning discussion only, its mere publication has provoked an attack of twitters to nervous people in the west, and it has been promptly exploited by the watchful Communist propaganda machine.

Meantime, General Eisenhower has come out with some forthright voluntary advice to Western Europe generally, to get on with the discussion, not merely of military union via the proposed European Army, and of economic union via the initial step of the Schuman plan, but of political union among the western continental nations via a constitutional convention. His remarks were addressed originally to press correspondents on an off-record basis, but after a day's study of the transcript and some permanent deletions the bulk of his remarks were made public.

The outstanding item of the discussion was his declaration in favor of an international gathering for planning a formal union rather than a mere scheme of coordination; its report, he said, should be made by mid-1953, adding that the United States is "greatly responsive to announcement of determination and spirit and readiness to do something." General Eisenhower's hope, it is apparent, is for that stable sort of union on which a common and enduring defense plan can be confidently based, and it is in this aspect which sufficiently explains the Supreme Commander's recommendation, quite apart from the other values which could be expected to reside in such a project. By happy coincidence the same week has produced better feeling within the Benelux group (a necessary component in the Schuman Plan, in the European Army, and in NATO itself). For a week ago there was manifest irritation in the Netherlands over Belgium's disinclination to alter the existing trade agreement; that agreement was made before Belgium's remarkable industrial and economic improvement (for which Belgium's admirable determination was responsible) and the result has been to place a less energetic Holland at a present disadvantage; Belgium's diplomatic attitude this past week supports the hope that the Benelux community's internal troubles can be adjusted, with promise of continuing good relations within the larger NATO community.

The long-predicted nationalist upheaval in Tunisia came to reality this week, with

Armistice Talks Continue Stalemated

CONTINUED pessimism surrounds the Korean armistice negotiations as the delegations hold brief daily meetings in Panmunjom, but make no appreciable progress toward a truce agreement. The insistence of the Reds on the right to rebuild North Korean airfields during an armistice, and their refusal to consider the Allied proposal for voluntary, rather than compulsory repatriation of prisoners of war remain the principal points of difference.

In an effort to settle the airfield issue the Allies offered to accept practically all conditions of the Red counter-proposal for enforcement of armistice terms if the Communists would agree in writing to a ban on reconstruction of their bombed-out airfields during the truce. The Allied offer was immediately rejected by the Reds.

At the same time, the United Nations delegates refused to accede to the Red demand for forced repatriation of prisoners of war. Many North Koreans and some Chinese, who were strongly anti-Communist, were impressed into the Red Army, and thousands of these are now held as prisoners by the Allies. They vehemently object to being forced to return to Red control.

► REAR ADM. R. E. LIBBY, USN, of the Allied truce delegation, this week accused the Communist negotiators of making "an out-and-out grab for military advantage" in Korea, and of showing "ruthless disregard of the rights of the individual." He informed the enemy representatives that the Allies were not going to give up insistence on voluntary repatriation.

The Reds accused United Nations pilots of making air attacks on the Kaesong demilitarized zone, on a properly marked truce convoy, and on a prisoner-of-war camp in North Korea. One result of these accusations apparently will be better protection for prison camps in the future. The Reds have agreed to furnish the Allies with maps on which locations of such camps will be precisely designated, and also to provide identifying markings for the camps in daylight. They refused to provide lights for the camps at night, apparently in the belief that lights might be useful to Allied pilots in night navigation.

While hope for ultimate success of the truce conference appears to be waning there seems to be no immediate prospect of abandoning negotiations. Even the most hopeful officials appear to be resigned to the possibility of several months more of fruitless haggling before an agreement is reached or negotiations are broken off. It is felt in some quarters that the Communists may be deliberately stalling discussions while awaiting further instructions from Moscow. The bogging down of the truce talks may be related to the recent demand by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky that the United Nations take over consideration of the Korean armistice. Mr. Vishinsky's proposal was overwhelmingly rejected by the General Assembly.

► ANOTHER RUSSIAN PROPOSAL at the Paris meeting of the General Assembly, calling for the omnibus admission to the United Nations of five Communist countries and nine non-Communist nations, found little favor. The five Red countries on the Soviet list are Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania, and Outer Mongolia, all of which had previously failed to get a majority in the Security Council. The nine non-Communist countries included in the Soviet proposal are Finland, Ireland, Italy, Portugal, Nepal, Ceylon, Jordan, and Austria, admission of all having been vetoed by Russia, and the new state of Libya.

The United States and England immediately opposed the offer of the Soviet Union to agree to withhold its veto on admission of non-Communist states, provided her five satellites were permitted to join the United Nations. It was held that admission to the United Nations should be based on the qualifications and record of each applicant in measuring up to the ideals of the world organization. Ambassador Ernest Gross of the United States said that admission could not be based on blackmail, with threats of a Soviet veto determining the issue.

In Egypt an American nun, Sister Anthony, was killed during a brief battle between British troops and native guerrillas at Ismailia. Each side blamed the other for the slaying, and an American consular investigation failed to fix responsibility. The nun was killed as she stood outside the door of a convent, the grounds of which had been invaded by the Egyptian irregulars.

► THE IRANIAN GOVERNMENT of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh has refused to accept Robert Hankey as British ambassador to Iran, succeeding Sir Francis Shepherd. Mr. Hankey, a career diplomat and former secretary to Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, served at one time in the British embassy at Teheran and is thoroughly familiar with conditions in Iran. His rejection, following the closing of British consulates in that country, is certain to worsen relations, already near a breaking point. The recent twisting of the tail of the British lion by the aging Persian premier is probably largely for local effect, in connection with current parliamentary elections. Mossadegh rode to power on a wave of anti-foreign agitation, and apparently he plans to retain power by the same means, irrespective of the effect on international relations.

French and native troops in Indo-China this week registered further gains in their current campaign against Viet Minh Red guerrillas. Apparently the Communist troops are withdrawing to the west, closely pressed by strong tank-infantry combat teams, supported by air units. The French announced this week that the rebel Reds had recently received enormous amounts of war materials from Communist China, including trucks, field guns, mortars, rifles, automatic weapons, hand grenades, and artillery and small arms ammunition.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill returned to England this week after a highly successful visit to the United States. It was generally agreed that relations between the United States and Great Britain had materially improved as a result of the statesman's visit, and that greater cooperation of the two countries in the military, diplomatic, and economic fields was now certain. One tangible immediate result of the visit was completion of arrangements whereby Britain will get a million tons of steel from the United States, and, in turn, America will be able to purchase increased amounts of badly needed aluminum from Canada and tin from Malaya.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Across-The-Board Selective Service—The long-discussed issue concerning utilization of Selective Service by all of the Armed Forces was raised anew this week in testimony by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Director. He told the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee that competitive practices of the Armed Forces are creating an "unreal shortage" of military manpower.

General Hershey said that the Army, in an effort to protect itself against having to accept too great a share of less desirable men, is forced to reject a large number of men at the induction stations.

"Until this situation is corrected by some method of centralized orderly procurement equally applicable to all the Services," said General Hershey, "we have no reason to expect an equitable distribution of manpower and we shall continue to create an unreal shortage which ultimately may drive us to the use at the least opportune time of greatly disproportionate numbers of less fit men."

General Hershey and his associates have felt that Selective Service should be used by all of the Armed Forces. The Army has supported this position, but the Navy and Air Force have resisted use of the draft.

Although details are said to be classified by Department of Defense officials, reports are that during recent months the Army has had to accept a disproportionate number of men with the lowest physical qualifications. This is said to be causing concern by Army officials at the Pentagon and in the field.

It is conceivable that as UMT hearings develop and as analysis of manpower problems are reviewed on Capitol Hill that more will be said during the current session with regard to Selective Service for all of the Armed Forces.

No Stogies for Rations—The possibility of including cigars in the Army ration has been under informal discussion, but the present indications are that stogies will not be added. Army officials explain that there are only a relatively few military personnel who will not smoke cigarettes, if cigars are not available. They note, also, that the range of tobaccos in cigars is much greater than that in cigarettes.

Reports that cigars would be added to the rations stem apparently from the addition of cigars to a number of PX packs in Korea. This is not a ration. The PX pack contains items such as razor blades, gum, etc., and its contents are up to the theater commander. Cigars may or may not be included.

To Be Chief Nurse of GH in France—Lt. Col. Dorothy E. Ainsworth, who has been Assistant to the Chief Nurse at Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington, D. C., has been named Chief Nurse of the 28th GH being reactivated at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., for early movement to France. Other Walter Reed nurses assigned to the 28th include Maj. Caroline Davis and Edith Shutt, and Lts. Wilda Anderson, Evelyn Goss, Dorothea Lundgren, Mary Peckham, Bertha Strausser and Leah Voorhees.

Nurse Corps Anniversary—The Army Nurse Corps will celebrate its 51st anniversary on 2 Feb. The anniversary will be marked by the inauguration of a program to commission within 90 days at least one recent graduate from each of the 1,190 state approved schools of nursing in the United States.

In Korea, more than 30 Army nurses have been decorated for outstanding service.

At 62 Enlists "Indefinitely"—After a try-out period, the Service seems to satisfy M/Sgt. John E. Fox of Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. At 62 after a mere 41 years' active duty, he has just signed up for an "indefinite enlistment." He's a member of the Air Force and has been at Aberdeen for the past 11 years. Until a year ago, he was on flying status.

Col. Schanze in Soviet Liaison Post—Col. August E. Schanze, former commander of the 4th Division's 8th Infantry Regiment, has been named Chief of the U. S. Military Liaison Mission to the commander-in-chief, Soviet Occupation Zone of Germany, at Potsdam. He succeeds Col. John P. Evans, who has headed the mission since November 1950. Colonel Evans will report to the office of the Chief of Army Field Forces at Ft. Monroe, Va.

Army Gym Named for AF Officer—A new $325,000 gymnasium at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., Army Ordnance center, will be named in honor of an Air Force officer, the late Capt. Walter R. Russell. In ceremonies on 31 Jan., tribute will be paid to Captain Russell, who served at Aberdeen Proving Ground from April 1947 to July 1950, when he volunteered for service in Korea. He was killed while flying an F-51 in action against the enemy.

Coast and Geodetic War History—Rear Adm. Robert F. A. A. Studts announces publication of the "World War History of the Coast and Geodetic Survey." During the war years, the Coast and Geodetic Survey was under command of Rear Adm. Leo Otis Colbert, who was retired in 1950 after serving for 12 years as Director.

During the war, 94 of the 171 commissioned officers of the Coast and Geodetic Survey were on duty with the Armed Forces—48 with the Army and 29 with the Navy, and 17 with the Marine Corps.

General Officer Promotions—The fact that a number of Army colonels and brigadier generals are serving in assignments which call for one-star and two-star ranks indicates that the President may soon send to the Senate a list of nominations for temporary promotions of general officers. Since vacancies are known to exist, it will be surprising if the nominations are not sent to the White House shortly for transmittal to Capitol Hill.

Naval Aviation Medical Pioneer Retires—Capt. Frederick Ceres, MC, USN, having reached the statutory retirement age, will be placed on the retired list of officers of the Navy on 1 Feb. He is currently assigned duty as the Medical Officer, Naval Mine Depot, Yorktown, Va.

A pioneer in naval aviation medicine, Captain Ceres in 1939 organized and founded the Naval School of Aviation Medicine, NAS, Pensacola, Fla. He was designated a Naval Flight Surgeon in 1923 following his graduation from the Army School of Aviation Medicine, Mitchel Field, Long Island, N. Y.

Learning to fly in 1918, Captain Ceres has maintained an active interest and practically continuous duty in connection with Naval aviation. He has logged many hours in the air including solo flying performed under special authorization.

Captain and Mrs. Ceres, the former Marie Miller of Hagerstown, Md., plan a four-month tour of Europe following his retirement. Upon return to the United States, they will open their home at Hancock, N. H., where they will reside.

After Much Service, First Duty Overseas—Sgt. James O. Kesler of Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., a veteran of 34 years' military service, has received his first assignment overseas. He will leave next month for the Far East Command. Most of his service was at the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., where he was an instructor. The sergeant, who is 51, retired in September 1950 but was recalled as an enlisted reservist less than a month later.

Possible Airlift Record—Completing what is claimed to be the largest single-day airlift in aviation history, 60 Troop Carrier planes recently returned to Stewart AFB, Tenn., from Camp Drum, N. Y. Fifty-six C-46 transports, the "Commando" and four of the Air Force's newest and largest Troop Carrier planes, the C-124 "Globemaster," airlifted over 2,600 members of the Ft. Campbell, Ky., 188th Regimental Combat Team, a unit of the 11th Airborne Division, to Wheeler-Sack AFB near Watertown, N. Y., for participation in "Exercise Snowfall."

"War and Peace" Popular in FEC—Army Special Service librarians in the Southwestern Command, Japan, report that Leo Tolstoy's classic novel, "War and Peace" is now among the five most popular books sought by military personnel. In greatest demand is James Jones' "From Here to Eternity," said to be out front in popularity by a "comfortable margin," followed by J. D. Salinger's "Catcher in the Rye"; Herman Wouk's "The Caine Mutiny"; and Leslie Turner White's "Lord Johnnie."

In the non-fiction field, readers showed opposite extremes in literary taste—with volumes on religion and criminology in greatest demand.

During 1951, more than 800,000 persons used the 26 branch libraries in the Southwestern Command as 522,725 books were circulated.

Army "Best Seller"—A recently published volume on Army administrative work has sold over 100,000 copies. It's the work of Maj. Arthur M. Chester, adjutant of the 2d Logistical Command in Korea. The book, entitled "Technique for Adjutants," deals with problems encountered in personnel administrative work and lists shortcuts developed by Major Chester during 25 years of administrative work.

Yellow Fever Precaution—Brig. Gen. Silas B. Hayes, Deputy Surgeon General of the Army, and Col. Robert L. Black, Chief of the Medical Service Corps, will visit Medical installations in the Panama Canal Zone and Puerto Rico from 28 Jan. to 5 Feb. Special attention will be directed to new mosquito control measures following reports of jungle yellow fever in Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama. To date, Army and civilian personnel in the Canal Zone have been free of the disease, but authorities are studying new means of combating any outbreak should yellow fever be introduced among Americans in the area. Col. Francis P. Kintz is Surgeon, U. S. Army, Caribbean. Col. Henry W. Daine is commander of Rodriguez Army Hospital in San Juan and Surgeon, U. S. Army Forces, Antilles.

Army Strong-Man—When Pfc. James E. Bradford of Camp Breckinridge, Ky., nonchalantly handled a 75mm. recoilless rifle with one hand, officers and men of his company figured he might be a strong contender in weight-lifting contests. They were right. During the recent international weight lifting contest in Milan, Italy, Bradford placed second to world champion weight lifter John Davis—a former soldier.

Benning Lt. "One-Man Gang"—At Ft. Benning, Ga., 1st Lt. Howard E. Williams of the 508th Airborne Infantry Regimental Combat Team is known as a "one-man gang." During nine years' Army service—half of it spent behind enemy lines during World War II—he won the Distinguished Service Cross, two Silver Stars, three Bronze Stars and four Purple Hearts. The lieutenant, is recognized as one of the world's top demolition experts.

HANDBOOK OF COURT-MARTIAL LAW

REVISED EDITION

by Conrad D. Philos

Member of the Illinois and Federal Bar
Formerly Chief of Military Justice, U.S. Forces, Austria
President of Court of Appeals, U.S. Area of Control, Austria

PRICE $6.50

An indispensable guide for: 1. Enlisted men and officers who serve as court members. 2. Unit and ship's officers, personnel officers and court-martial clerks who draft and process charges. 3. Military policemen, criminal investigators, pre-trial investigating officers, trial counsel, defense counsel, convening authorities and staff judge advocates who investigate, try and review criminal charges. 4. Accused who are under charges, so they can be informed of their basic rights under military law in terms that they can understand, with or without the assistance of counsel.

If you wear stripes or stars, are line, staff or specialist, this volume should be at your elbow, because it is a companion volume to the Manual for Courts-Martial, 1951, and its nearly 600 pages review thousands of authoritative cases of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Each paragraph of the 1951 Manual is covered by a corresponding paragraph of the Handbook which briefly and concisely explains and illustrates the provisions of the Manual so that Trained legal specialists can quickly find precedents on many ambiguous points and save hours of laborious research. Military personnel who are not legally trained can use the Handbook as a simply written, but authoritative guide in the performance of their various military justice duties.

Equipped with a pocket to take care of periodic supplementation.

Turbo-prop...First U. S. turbo-prop attack bomber, the A2D Skyhawk, built for the U. S. Navy and now entering production at El Segundo Division of Douglas.

Reciprocating...World's largest cargo transport now in volume production.
 It's the C-124 Globemaster II, designed to support global operations of the military.

all four power types...

From the DC-3 to the Skyrocket—fastest airplane ever built—Douglas has pioneered remarkable advances in every phase of the art of flight. Undisputed leader in the design and production of the finest in transport airplanes, Douglas has also developed basic airframe types to embrace the three new powers: turbo-prop, jet and rocket. Douglas is the only manufacturer that has built and flown all four aircraft types! Certainly this is a tribute to the foresight and creative engineering skills of the Douglas organization. Today, as Douglas continues to mass-produce the aircraft needed now, research and engineering teams push ahead in every field of aeronautics...planning the "miracle" planes that will supersede the near-miracle planes of today. Navy Salvage School

The Navy has announced that applications are being accepted from qualified line officers in the rank of lieutenant commander and below, including warrant officers of the Regular Navy and Naval Reserve, for a course of instruction in Salvage at the Naval School, Salvage, New York Naval Shipyard, Bayonne, N. J.

Accepted applicants will attend a fourteen weeks course of instruction in all phases of ship salvage, including the methods employed in raising sunken ships in harbors and coastal areas, the salvage of disabled or grounded ships, and in other salvage specializations.

The Navy said all officers must be physically qualified to receive diving training in accordance with the Manual of the Medical Department. The Navy also said that officers trained in the salvage officers' courses are normally assigned to salvage officer billets in ARS, ARSD, ASRT, ASR, and ATF type vessels and to staffs of various commands.

Officers whose period of obligated service is eighteen months or greater and who desire salvage training are to submit applications to the Chief of Naval Personnel.

Navy Commands To Eight

New commanding officers have been assigned to eight Navy commands as follows:

ComMineRon 3—Capt. Herald F. Stout, ComSubGru 1, San Diego Gru—Capt. Lindsey Williamson.
CO, NAS, Akron—Capt. Alden D. Schwarz, CO, NavCIC Off Scol, NAS, Glenview—Capt. William M. Drane.
CO, FlightRon 33—Comdr. Eugene W. Krebsbach.
CO, FlightRon 31—Comdr. Raymond G. Thorpe (NR).
CO, NAAS, Barin Field—Comdr. Charles L. Moore, Jr.
CO, FlightRon 783—Lt. Comdr. James W. Wyrick.
CO, PatRon 40—Lt. Comdr. Miles S. White-ner.

U. S. COAST GUARD

PRESIDENT Truman this week asked Congress to grant the Coast Guard $238,850,000 during fiscal year 1953. This compares with the current budget of $227,422,000.

The military strength of the Coast Guard will be altered by only 26 persons. Estimated 1952 strength is 35,141 and the 1953 estimate is 35,115.

Major items in the 1953 Coast Guard budget were $196,250,000 for operating expenses, $21,000,000 for acquisition, construction and improvements, $17,600,000 for retired pay and $4,000,000 for reserve training. In the 1952 budget, only $1,850,000 is allocated for reserve training.

The 1953 reserve program envisages training for 1221 officers and 4746 enlisted personnel. Only 700 officers currently are included in the reserve training program.

Officers Reelected

Lt. (jg) Lionel M. Van Winkle has been reelected president of the Chief Warrant and Warrant Officers Association. Other officers reelected were CPCLK Morris J. Eagerton, vice president; CSCLK Earl Elder, secretary; CPCLK Hobart W. Means, treasurer; and CBOSN Benjamin F. Lombard, purser.

The Association throughout 1951 led the campaign on Capitol Hill to gain long-delayed remedial legislation to insure equitable promotion of warrant officers. The Association's National Council will meet 15 Feb. at 7:30 p.m. at 1203 Pennsylvania Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Old Sea Dog Dies

Death has come to one of the most famous sea dogs of World War II—Sinbad—the mascot of the Coast Guard Cutter Campbell, who died 31 Dec. at the Barnegat, N. J., Light Station where he had been "retired from active duty." Sinbad was 15.

Sinbad served aboard the Campbell from 1937 until 1945. During that time he was promoted from Seaman Pooch to Chief Dog. He traveled from Iceland to Tokyo Bay during the war—sailing 510,000 miles aboard the famed cutter.

A book has been written about him, "Sinbad of the Coast Guard," by Chief Specialist George F. Foley, USCGR, illustrated by Chief Specialist George R. Gray, USCGR. One of these books at Coast Guard Headquarters has Sinbad's own paw print.

Uniform Allowance

Each Reserve officer upon first reporting for extended active duty or training duty will receive a $50 uniform allowance if he had had at least four years in the Coast Guard Reserve since his last uniform allowance. The General Accounting Office has stated that he is entitled to collect only this amount, even though more than four years have elapsed since his previous tour of active service.

Officials said that the uniform allowance for officers becoming associated with an organized unit has not yet been settled.

Our New Killers

lines in Korea, others by maintaining radar picket stations which surface craft would find untenable in the face of air attack.

As the Submarine Force, U. S. Pacific Fleet, tests the new offensive strength at its disposal, the grim realization is ever present that our only potential enemy is a vast landmass and but little dependent upon ocean commerce. And still more grim is the possibility that this potential enemy has concentrated its naval effort on the construction of a large fleet of submarines designed after the latest and best U-boats developed by German scientists late in World War II.

This combination of circumstances has brought about a decided shift in emphasis within our Force. While we are not neglecting the phase of submarine warfare that enabled our boats to slug more than 5,300,000 tons of Japanese shipping to the bottom in World War II (more Japanese tonnage than was destroyed by all other allied forces), we are now most concerned with developing anti-submarine submarine tactics.

Sink Jap Subs

This aspect of underseas warfare is not new to us. In the last war we sank 33 Japanese submarines, and lost at least one of ours to their anti-submarine submarine activities. In the same period, surface and air units destroyed 95 Japanese underseas craft.

The destruction of 33 enemy submarines in a war with a nation possessing a large number of modern submarines would not satisfy the Submarine Force of the U. S. Pacific Fleet. And to be reasonably certain that we could destroy a larger number not only requires a more efficient anti-submarine submarine than we previously have had in the fleet, but necessitates the formulation of a new concept of anti-submarine warfare.

If we were an aggressor nation, and could name the time and place of our first encounter with the enemy, our twin task of devising a new weapon and testing a new theory to incorporate into our older doctrine of underseas warfare could be undertaken leisurely. But we are not the aggressor. For this reason we must move with swiftness and with caution, twin obligations that make our task more dangerous. Not only must we be right when we select our weapons, but we must time our decision carefully, for it would be as disastrous to decide too soon and equip ourselves with an inferior weapon as it would be to wait until a crisis was upon us and find ourselves armed only with theory, prototypes and files filled with wonderful blueprints.

Anti-Sub Maneuvers

Sometime ago, while carrying our regular training forward and testing prototypes of guided missile submarines and others of unconventional design, we began a long series of anti-submarine warfare maneuvers with air and surface units. One of the purposes of these tests was to evaluate, if possible, the vulnerability of the modern submarine when under attack by the best of existing anti-submarine warfare units.

We felt that the result of these ASW practices indicated that both a new anti-submarine weapon and new and aggressive theories of anti-submarine warfare were necessary. As a weapon, we designed the SSK, popularly called the "Killer sub," and decided upon a campaign of aggressive blockade and attack against enemy submarines at strategic points.

The K-boat, which we now have begun to test in ASW operations, is approximately half the size of our conventional submarines, but it is packed with the latest in electronics equipment and is armed with our best torpedoes.

But we could not concentrate only on making this boat an efficient killer. We had to provide comfort for the crew of about 40 men so they will be able to remain on station for long periods without losing battle efficiency. To gain this end we installed the latest in air conditioning, provided space for relaxation within limits, and stowage space necessary to permit well-balanced and varied meals.

In the battle of submarine against submarine, men are waging the most nerve-trying war yet thrust upon civilized man. I often think of it as paralleling the situation which would exist if two men, mortal enemies armed with axes, were placed in a pitch-dark room. Each man knows the other is there. Each man knows that the one with the keenest ears will win, for as soon as one makes a sound audible to the other, he will be hit with an axe.

This is a street of fear that runs both ways, and to give our men the best of it, we have constructed on the bows of our Killer subs a box-like device packed with the very latest of our long-range sound detecting gear.

The mission of the K-boats is to station themselves at strategic points near enemy submarine bases as terriers before a rat hole, ready for offensive action the moment an enemy submarine attempts to get underway to attack us.

We have attempted to design our K-boats so they can remain on station for long periods without creating noise that may betray them, and since they can remain hidden from either visual or radar search, they can operate at an enemy's front door where no surface unit could maintain station.

Killer Submarines

The function of the Killer subs in a war situation would be two-fold. Primarily, it would detect the approach of an enemy submarine as it tries to slip to the open ocean and begin its run on an American port for a guided missile attack, or to begin a systematic prowling of the sea lanes. Once detected, the Killer sub would strike from its silent ambush, destroying the enemy with electronic homing torpedoes. Or, failing to make a kill, our boat would report the passage of the enemy to the open seas. This would give us and other units an opportunity to organize further counter measures while we still knew the approximate position of the enemy.

The second function of the K-boats on aggressive blockade would be to delay the egress of enemy submarines until they and their bases could be attacked by bombs or by guided missiles from our own submarines.

It is too early in our Killer-sub testing program to predict the eventual presence of large numbers of these specialists in our naval organization. The work we are doing with them today is basically similar to the tests we have been conducting with many prototypes of fundamentally new sorts of submarines. This is a slow and exacting task, for not only must we be right when we make a decision to expand in a specific direction, but we must be right in the often baffling point of view of time.

From Mothballs

And since we are concerned with the vital safety of our country, we are not putting all of our torpedoes in one hull. We are pulling World War II submarines from the mothball fleet, equipping them with the latest devices that can be added to an older hull, and training crews to the peak of battle efficiency.

Nor is it only hulls that are being taken from our reserve. Many officers and men are being asked to leave civilian-reserve training and report for active duty.

The high quality of these men and the ease with which they fit into crews aboard active submarines have more than justified the relatively small amount of money we have devoted to the organized submarine reserve training program.

As the Submarine Force, U. S. Pacific Fleet faces up to its problems in the critical days of 1952, we feel we are maintaining battle efficiency in all of our submarines and at the same time making much progress in completing the task of devising a new concept to implement the new weapon—the true submarine—when it appears in the fleet.

Comdr. Leslie M. Wallace, DC, USN, has reported to the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., for duty as the Assistant Dental Officer. He came to Annapolis from Kodiak, Alaska, where he served as the Senior Dental Officer.

Submarine Warfare

Concerning submarines Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball made the following statement on the CBS-TV program, "See It Now," 20 Jan.

"Since the reduction of our naval forces at the end of World War II the submarine strength of our Navy has grown from 70 submarines to about 100. But during that time the Russian submarine fleet has grown from 50 to 300 or 400; many of them are of the latest types. So it is obvious that the submarine service is more important than ever to your United States Navy.

"Communist Russia has no substantial surface fleet that we know of. But, in the event of war, her rapidly growing undersea fleet would constitute a very real threat. The Navy's job in wartime is to keep control of the seas so that they will be highways for us and barriers for the enemy. That means we must control the under-water activities of any enemy, as well as those on the surface and in the air. In addition to attacking enemy submarines from the air and surface, we would attack them with other submarines.

"No one can foresee the terrible consequences of another world war, should that catastrophe occur. But I can say this: Defeating the submarines of a powerful enemy in wartime may not win such a war. But if we don't defeat them, we would most certainly lose it."

Commission Killer-Sub

Rear Adm. C. B. Momsen, Commander Submarine Force, U. S. Pacific Fleet, has returned to his Pearl Harbor headquarters from a mainland trip on which he delivered the principal address at the commissioning of the anti-submarine submarine, USS K-3, at Mare Island Naval Shipyard, Vallejo, Calif., and attended conferences with submarine officers at Mare Island and San Diego.

In the address delivered at the commissioning of the new killer submarine, which will be based at Pearl Harbor, Rear Admiral Momsen called attention to the times in the past when enemy submarines have threatened this country and her allies. He pointed out that "countermeasures by surface craft and aircraft have been found to be very expensive in material and lives and woefully inadequate in effectiveness."

"If we look ahead," he continued, "we can visualize that again enemy submarines in very large numbers could impose a most serious threat to our control of the seas. If we cannot guarantee that our men and materials may be transported safely over the oceans to war on enemy soil, then we may expect that war could be brought to our homeland.

"It is my conviction that submarine killers will play a major role in combating such a fleet. You see here the third in a series of prototype anti-submarine submarines.

"But the K class submarine may not be the final answer. Capt. Eric E. Hopley and his crew share a great responsibility with the captains and crews of the K-1 and K-2 to develop this prototype—to exploit the strong points and reject the weak ones so that we may be guided in our future designs to have the Killer concept fully developed in case these Killer submarines are needed."

While Rear Admiral Momsen was in San Diego he witnessed the ceremonies at which Comdr. Chester W. Nimitz, Jr., USN, son of the Fleet Admiral, took command of Submarine Division 32. Commander Nimitz relieved Comdr. Marshall H. Austin, USN, who has been ordered to duty as Officer-in-Charge of the Submarine Prospective Commanding Officer school in New London, Conn.

The new commander of Submarine Division 32 has been commanding officer of the destroyer USS O'Brien for the past 18 months, which included a tour of duty with United Nations Far East Forces.

Accompanying Rear Admiral Momsen on his mainland trip were Capt. D. F. Weiss, assistant chief of staff for plans and intelligence; Capt. O. D. Yarbrough, MC, force medical officer; Comdr. J. M. Seymour, tactical and training officer; Comdr. J. B. Icenhower, mine warfare officer; Comdr. P. K. Taylor, force material and electronics officer; Lt. Comdr. D. H. Green, anti-submarine warfare officer; Lt. J. H. Gormsen, public information officer, and Lt. (jg) W. R. Cobean, Jr., flag lieutenant.

War In Korea

sions, because of the impracticability of using air spotting.

East coast fleet bombardment elements were active from Kosong north to Songjin. The U. S. Heavy Cruiser St. Paul and the Destroyer Hamner provided naval gunfire support for Allied ground troops in the Kansong-Kosong battle area, along the eastern end of the line. In the vicinity of Kojo, the U. S. Destroyer Marshall delivered interdiction fire on shore targets.

At Wonsan, the U. S. Destroyers MacKenzie and Gregory fired on gun positions, bridges, and supply shelters. Gunners of the Gregory hit several trucks and scattered Red troops, completely disrupting a southbound truck convoy along an east coast highway. Shells from the Gregory also started several fires in a number of buildings.

Coastal rail lines from Wonsan to Hungnam were picketed by the U. S. Destroyer Halsey Powell, which also shelled the openings of several caves suspected of housing Red coast defense batteries. The U. S. Destroyer Collett ignited several large fires along the shore with night harassment salvos.

Naval Gunfire

The U. S. Destroyer-Minesweeper Doyle, the Destroyer Escort Edmonds, and the British Frigate Alacrity, off Songjin, concentrated their guns on railroad trestles, bridges and communications lines. Heavy damage was inflicted, the full extent of which could not be determined because of poor visibility.

On the west coast the British Patrol Frigate Whitesand Bay patrolled the Han River estuary, and fired on Red troop positions along the northern shore. The Australian Destroyer Tobruk blasted enemy artillery positions around the perimeter of the Amgak peninsula. West of Haeju the U. S. Destroyer Taussig took Red troops and small boats under fire.

Navy attack planes, flying from the U. S. Heavy Carriers Essex and Antietam, made major strikes on North Korean lines of communications and Red gun positions. The attacks destroyed or damaged numerous buildings, trucks, locomotives, railway cars, bridges, and anti-aircraft batteries.

Heaviest hit by the carrier-based planes was the Wonsan marshalling yard, which is now estimated to be 75 per cent destroyed. Supply buildings were left burning, and hundreds of rail cuts were made.

United States 1st Marine Air Wing pilots worked over enemy positions along the battle line, destroying trucks, bunkers and gun emplacements.

Air Attacks

Though adverse flying conditions, restricted operations of the Far East Air Force in Korea during the week its planes flew every day, often through snow and clouds, to attack enemy installations, lines of communications, and front-line troops. When the weather cleared Allied patrol planes ranged over Northwest Korea seeking enemy aircraft near the Manchurian border.

Bad weather kept the Red planes grounded during much of the time, but on two or three occasions enemy formations were sighted. On Wednesday, 23 Jan., American F-86 Sabre Jets engaged Red MIG-15s, shooting down two, probably destroying another, and damaging a fourth jet plane. No American losses were announced.

Preliminary reports of a big air battle between Allied and enemy planes on 25 Jan. disclosed that 10 enemy planes were shot down and another probably destroyed. In this encounter, American Sabre Jets were pitted against large formations of Red MIGs in northwest Korea. There were no reports of American losses.

American F-84 Thunder Jets dipped through cloud openings to hit the Communist rail line between Sonchon and Sinanju. They also cut rails from Sinanju to Pyongyang, and between Pyongyang and Sariwon. In the Sinanju area numerous enemy-occupied buildings were destroyed or damaged.

American F-80 Shooting Stars, F-51 Mustangs, and Marine planes cratered tracks from Sariwon to Kumchon. On (Please turn to Page 662)

SERVICE SOCIAL NEWS

MRS. Lemuel C. Shepherd, wife of the new Commandant of the Marine Corps, has seen thirty years as a Service wife and smilingly she says, "I have loved every minute of it." She has happy memories of China—"the most fascinating place I have ever been"—of Haiti and Honolulu and other far-flung posts. Right now, she is delighted to be back in Washington, where she has a host of friends, her affiliations with the Capital City going back to her school days at the National Cathedral School.

While General Shepherd was stationed here previously, she was active in the Navy Relief Society and a member of the Women's Army and Navy League, work she hopes to resume. Now she is busy overseeing the renovating of the historic old mansion that serves the Commandant and his family as home. In the meantime, they are living at the Fairfax Hotel.

General and Mrs. Shepherd have three children—all "Marines"—Lemuel 3d, and Wilson, serving in the Corps, and daughter, Virginia, wife of Capt. James Ord, USMC, who while her husband is on Service duty is with her parents. At present, she is visiting a sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward Elliott Ord in Greenwich, Conn.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James G. Christianson and their daughter, Lorel, just back from Tokyo, will be here for several weeks, and are enjoying seeing their many friends. The Christiansons are staying at the Officers' Club at Ft. Belvoir.

The Signal Corps officers and their ladies of the Washington area will hold their winter formal dance at the Army-Navy Country Club, on 8 Feb. Col. William D. Hamlin heads the committee planning the affair, which will start at 8 P.M., and continue with dancing from 9 to midnight. Other committee members are Lt. Col. Gerald P. Lerner, Maj. Bernard F. Mewhort, R. C. Hopkins, J. S. Bardwell, and Capt. Murray Putzer. All Signal Corps officers and retired Signal Corps officers of the Washington area are invited. Tickets may be obtained from Major Bardwell or any other committee members.

Lt. Gen. Merwin H. Silverthorn, USMC, and Mrs. Silverthorn entertained at a late afternoon parties, Saturday and Sunday last, the hospitality being for the entertainment of their sons and their circle of friends. Major Silverthorn, jr., and 2d Lt. Robert S. Silverthorn, both of the Marine Corps, arrived in Washington last week, Major Silverthorn from 10 months' service in Korea. Both are accompanied by their wives and children. Lieutenant and Mrs. Silverthorn came from Camp Lejeune and are en route to California. He is to go on to another assignment in the Far East.

The new Commandant of the Marine Corps, General Lemuel C. Shepherd, and Mrs. Shepherd, who will soon move into the Commandant's Quarters, Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C.

Another son, Capt. Russell L. Silverthorn joined his parents in Washington at Christmas time. He, too, is going on to a duty in the Far East in the near future.

General and Mrs. Silverthorn are leaving in March for Parris Island, his new assignment.

Lt. Col. George R. Ronka, USAF and Mrs. Ronka are leaving Washington shortly for his new post at Ent AFB in Colorado Springs. Mrs. Ronka, who has been very active in the Air Force Officers' Wives' Club, will be much missed.

Col. and Mrs. Otto Saar are leaving Washington shortly for Elmendorf AFB in Alaska, where he will be director of communications and electronics for the Alaskan Command. Mrs. Saar will be missed by her confreres in Girl Scout affairs, she having had her own troop.

Several officers of the Corps of Engineers and their ladies met for dinner at the Army and Navy Town Club before the Symphony Concert on 23 Jan. Col. and Mrs. John C. Ladd were hosts on this pleasant occasion. The guests were Col. and Mrs. Jackson Graham, Col. and Mrs. Norman Matthias, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Earl C. Pauls, and Capt. and Mrs. Charles Schaeffer.

The Washington Chapter of the Daughters of the United States Army will meet for luncheon on Monday, 4 Feb., at the Army-Navy Town Club, 17th and I Sts., N.W., in the 7th floor private dining room. The ladies will gather at 12:30 o'clock for a sociable half hour before luncheon is served promptly at 1:00 o'clock. Those who wish to play bridge or other card games may do so by telephoning Mrs. P. J. Mueller (WO 9369), so that arrangements may be made for tables. The club opens at 11:00 A.M.

Rear Adm. R. L. R. Bowman, USN-Ret., of Merrill Lynch Investment Securities, will be the speaker. He will discuss how to make investments and will show a film entitled "Fair Exchange" which deals further with this important subject. Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Lawrence Halstead (EM 3310) before Thursday evening, 31 Jan.

Newcomers to Washington who are eligible to belong to the organization may apply for membership to Mrs. Leon M. Grant (OL 0309), 8038 Glendale Road, Chevy Chase, Md., either at the luncheon or beforehand.

Newly elected officers of the Armed Forces Hostess' Association were installed at the annual meeting of the association on 22 Jan. at the Ft. Myer Officers' Club. Mrs. George L. Russell, wife of the Judge Advocate General of the Navy, and retiring president, thanked the officers and members for their excellent cooperation during 1951. Mrs. A. W. R. Fitzsimmons, Office Director, reported that over 4,000 calls were made on Service wives during the past year.

Mrs. Clifton F. Von Kann, wife of Col. von Kann, USA, was elected president. Mrs. Von Kann is one of the original members of the association, which was organized in the spring, 1949, and has served as secretary and publicity chairman. Other officers are: Mrs. Kilburn R. Brown, vice-president; Mrs. H. A. Fravel, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Thomas R. Mitman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. W. R. Fitzsimmons, office director.

Invitations to the Midwinter Brunch are in the mail. Ft. Myer Officers' Club on Tuesday, 29 Jan., will be the scene of this gathering of Pentagon and Neighborhood Hostesses and newcomers to Washington. Mrs. C. W. Stewart is in charge of arrangements.

The West Point Class of Jan. 1943 celebrated the 9th anniversary of graduation with a dinner dance at the Army-Navy Country Club, on Saturday evening, 19 Jan. On the committee in charge were Lt. Col. B. S. May, Maj. R. T. Schlosberg, Maj. L. L. Wilkes, and Maj. C. W. Page. Sixty-six members of the Washington chapter attended.

The West Point Wives' Club, Class of 1942, held their monthly meeting on 16 Jan. Mrs. Frederick W. Hyde, jr., and Mrs. Charles W. Ryder were hostesses at a dessert bridge held at Mrs. Hyde's home in Arlington, Va. Mrs. Kenneth F. Hanst, Mrs. George D. Hughes and Mrs. William C. Plott were appointed members of a committee to finalize arrangements for a luncheon to be held in February and to be sponsored jointly with the U. S. Naval Academy Wives of the Class of 1942 at the Officers' Club of the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.

Weddings and Engagements

MRS. John Wilfred Dailey of Great Bend, Kans., announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Patricia Jeanne to 1st Lt. Jack Newton Dillard, USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cary Price Dillard of Sylva, N. C. The marriage will take place in the very near future at Saint Xavier's Chapel, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Miss Dailey has been a civilian employee at Camp Lejeune for the past five years. Lieutenant Dillard is presently attached to the Second Marine Division there.

The bride-to-be is secretary and assistant to Dr. Mary Sears, planktonologist, at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Woods Hole, Mass.

Mr. Hulburt is a graduate of the University of Rochester and the University of Michigan, and is now engaged in research at the University of Delaware.

A Fall wedding is planned.

The wedding of Miss Patricia McGrath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. McGrath of 71 Woodland Avenue, River Edge, N. J., to Lt. Cecil Ward Nist, jr.,

son of Col. and Mrs. Cecil W. Nist of Sendai, Japan, took place on 7 January in The Cadet Chapel, West Point, N. Y. The ceremony was performed by The Reverend Frank E. Pulley, and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Chantilly lace, with finger tip veil of illusion, falling from a Juliet cap of lace, and carried white orchids and snap dragons.

Miss Marilyn McGrath, of Bergenfield, N. J., cousin of the bride, was the only attendant and wore a faille gown of cornflower blue with matching Juliet cap, and carried American Beauty roses.

Lt. John Stahl of Glen Ridge, N. J., U.S.M.A. '51, classmate of the groom, acted as best man. The ushers, all Cadets of the Academy, were Donald Swygert, Robert Karns, Corwin Mitchell and John Martin.

The bride is a graduate of Hackensack, N. J. High School and Paine Hall, New York City, and until her marriage was a medical secretary to Dr. Howard E. Bruenn, noted New York heart specialist.

Lieutenant Nist is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Class of 1951, and was manager of the Wrestling Team. Before entering West Point, he served with the 77th Infantry at Okinawa.

The couple is on an extended motor trip through the southern United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Warder Thoron announce the engagement of their daughter, Ann Ashton, to Capt. George N. Hale, jr., USAF, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hale of Westwood Village at Los Angeles, Calif. The wedding will take place in the spring.

The candlelit chapel of the Ft. Campbell U. S. Army Hospital, Ky., was the scene of an impressive wedding ceremony uniting First Lt. Dorothy M. Sobonski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sobonski of Scranton, Pa., and First Lt. James H. Nix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nix of Longview, Wash., on 20 Jan. Chaplain (Maj.) Robert B. Herndon, post and hospital chaplain, officiated at the ceremony.

For her wedding, the bride chose a ballerine length model over ice blue satin fashioned with picture neckline with illusion of net. Her shoulder length veil fell from a matching ice blue satin bonnet and her opera pumps were tinted the same shade of blue. Lieutenant Sobonski carried a nosegay of stephanotis centered with an orchid.

First Lt. Theresa Sementa of Fairchance, Pa., room mate of the bride, was her only attendant.

ment with Newsday. Lieutenant Driscoll attended English High, San Jose Military School in San Juan, Porto Rico and the Lakeside School in Seattle, Wash. He was graduated as a Lieutenant from the Jet Pilot Fighter School in Chandler, Ariz. He is now stationed with the 64th Fighter Squadron, at Elmendorf AFB, Anchorage, Alaska, where the couple will reside.

The Post Chapel at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., was the setting for the wedding of Miss Gloria Joyce Pursley, daughter of Col. and Mrs. C. A. Pursley, and Mr. Alfred Bacon, Jr., son of Capt. A. M. T. Bacon, sr., USN-Ret., and Mrs. Bacon, on 18 Jan.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. George Mauze and the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin fashioned with a fitted bodice, its sheer yoke trimmed with Alencon lace, and a bouffant skirt falling into a cathedral-length train. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a poke bonnet of satin trimmed with illusion and seed pearls. Mrs. Joe Morgan was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Wanda Jennings, Miss Anna Beth Morris, Miss June Kilstofte and Mrs. Harry Dulin, Jr. Andrea Elizabeth Bacon was flower girl and Douglas Morgan was ringbearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bacon will make their home at 137 Elmorte Dr., San Antonio, upon their return from a wedding trip along the Texas coast.

An afternoon wedding of 19 Jan., which took place at the Post Chapel, Ft. Myer, Va., was that of Miss Mary Lou Lee, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Richard Henry Lee of Chevy Chase, Md., and Mr. Richard Wells Lahr. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. August Louis Lahr, also of Chevy Chase.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin designed with a portrait neckline, a fitted bodice and a full skirt sweeping into a cathedral train. Her French illusion veil was attached to a tiara of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids, stephanotis and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Barbara Schott of Long Island was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Margaret Campbell of Bethesda, Md. Mr. John K. Lewis of Bethesda served as best man. The ushers were the Messrs. Frank Queen, Charles Hughes, Edward Adams and Richard Titlow.

Following the ceremony, Colonel and Mrs. Lee were hosts at a reception at the Ft. Myer Officers' Club, where the bride cut the six-tier wedding cake with the saber her mother and father had used at their own wedding 22 years before.

After a wedding trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. Lahr will make their home at Chevy Chase.

The bride attended American University and the Washington School for Secretaries, and the bridegroom attended Maryland University and the Benjamin Franklin University.

In a ceremony marked with quiet simplicity, Miss Theresa Dunning Goodwyn became the bride of Donald Aaron Springer on 28 Dec. 1951 at Grace Episcopal Church, Anniston, Ala. The Rev. William Shannon Stoney read the impressive marriage vows in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Allen Agee Goodwyn and Dr. Springer's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Edward Springer.

Colonel Goodwyn gave his daughter in marriage. She was gowned in an afternoon dress of bronze taffeta with bouffant skirt and fitted bodice. The becoming neckline was enhanced by a design of iridescent beads. She wore a dainty cloche of white flowers, featuring a small green veil and carried a bouquet of green orchids.

Mrs. Marvin A. Harris (nee Priscilla Louise Goodwyn) was her sister's only attendant, Nathaniel E. Springer, Jr. served his brother as best man.

Dr. Springer attended the University of Alabama and was graduated from Ohio State University.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the young couple will be at home at La-Garde Apartments, Anniston.

On 24 Jan., at the Post Chapel, Ft. Myer, Va., Miss Mildred Benson, daughter of Mrs. Clarence Corinth Benson, and the late Colonel Benson, USA, became the bride of Lt. Robert Gibson Tobin, jr., USMC, (USNA '48), son of Rear Adm. R. G. Tobin, USN-Ret., and Mrs. Tobin of Chevy Chase, Md.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William E. Benson, wore a gown of ivory satin and rosepoint lace with a veil of matching lace attached to a Juliet cap. She carried a bridal bouquet of rosebuds and lilies-of-the-valley. Her matron of honor and only attendant was Mrs. Robert S. Wood of Washington. Mr. Evan G. Hanson was best man for Lieutenant Tobin, and the ushers were Lieutenants, USMC, E. William Hanlon, William F. Goggin, Charles J. Kelly and Harvey W. Baron.

The bride, who is a graduate of the Junior College of George Washington University, is a member of an old Washington family; her maternal grandfather was the late Mr. Ewell A. Dick, a prominent patent attorney. Lieutenant Tobin is now stationed in Washington, following recent service in Korea. He is the grandson of Mr. J. M. O'Rourke of Washington, who attained fame as the engineer and contractor of the Roosevelt Dam in Arizona and the Galveston, Tex., sea wall.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Tobin will be at home in the near future at 5312 Baltimore Ave., Chevy Chase, Md.

A recent marriage of Service interest was that of Miss Barbara Ann May to Lt. Charles Greene Johnson. The bride is the daughter of Col. Thomas E. May, USA-Ret., and Mrs. May of Carmel, Calif., and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charles Prevost Boyce of Baltimore, Md., and the late Mr. Willard Johnson of Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Johnson attended Oregon State College and the University of California at Santa Barbara, and is a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. Johnson, who has recently graduated from the Officers Candidate School at Ft. Riley, Kans., studied at Culver Military Academy, graduated from the Lake Forest Academy and the American Academy of Art in Chicago. Before entering the Service, he was associated with the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency in Chicago.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Johnson are now living in Alexandria, Va.

■ NAS, PENSACOLA, FLA. Lt. Neal D. Sanborn, MC, USN, was presented with the Bronze Star with Combat "V" 16 Jan., in the office of Capt. L. D. Carson, MC, USN, Commanding Officer of the U. S. Naval School of Aviation Medicine. Dr. Sanborn, the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Sanborn of 617 South Oak Park Avenue, Oak Park, Ill., and the husband of the former Martha Jane Houseman of 2080 Dahlia Street, Denver 7, Colo., was cited for: "Heroic achievement in connection with operations against the enemy while serving with a Marine artillery battalion in Korea on 21 July 1951."

■ BROOKS AFB, TEX. After the regular luncheon meeting recently, the Officers' Wives' Club adjourned to the Post Theater to witness films presented by Capt. Geo. E. Matheny, head of the Juvenile Aid Section of the San Antonio Police Department.

Mrs. J. C. Bickford, Vice President and Social Chairman, was assisted by the following hostesses, Mrs. J. B. McClellan, Mrs. Lowell Jameson and Mrs. L. W. Fogg.

■ VALLEY FORGE AH, PA. Plans for various fund-raising projects, the proceeds of which would make possible many of the charitable activities of the group, were considered last week at the first meeting of the Officers' Wives club for 1952. Thirty-five members of the group, headed by Miss Genevieve M. Welch, sister of Col. John M. Welch, hospital commander, met for a business session followed by bridge, canasta and informal group discussions.

Among the fund-raising proposals was a charity bazaar, the details of which were outlined by Mrs. Victor B. Vare, Jr., the wife of the Chief of the Orthopedic Section. A rummage sale also was proposed and Mrs. Edward M. DeYoung, wife of the Chief of the Radiology Service, and Mrs. Charles J. Thuss, sr., wife of the Chief of the Plastic Surgery Section, were appointed co-chairmen for a rummage sale committee.

Cakes for the meeting were donated by Mrs. Vare and by Mrs. A. F. Barrett, wife of the Headquarters Administrative Assistant. Hostesses for the day were Mrs. LeGrand H. Thomas, wife of the Chief of the Laboratory Service; Mrs. Donald K. Hesson, wife of the Laboratory Service administrative assistant, and Mrs. Devereux H. Lippitt, wife of the hospital's assistant pathologist.

■ ANNISTON, ALA. Among the mementos of his long Army service which Maj. Gen. Maj. Gen. E. L. Ford, Chief of Ordnance, and 34 others from the Office, Chief of Ordnance, Washington, were among the 140 conferees assembled at AOD to discuss Ordnance problems. General Kirk was represented by Col. J. H. Hinrichs, Deputy Chief of Field Service Division.

Also attending were Brig. Gen. C. H. Deitrick, commanding general of the Ordnance Tank Automotive Center, Detroit, Mich.; and Col. James F. Harris, Office Chief of Ordnance, as liaison officer.

■ CAMP COOKE, CALIF. The new officers of the Women's Club welcomed the members at the January luncheon meeting. Mrs. Willie H. Jones, president, introduced the new officials, and also announced that Mrs. Bruce Leppa would act as hospitality chairman, with committees in Santa Maria, Lompoc, Solvang and Orcutt who will soon be busy welcoming the incoming 44th which arrives in February. These include Mrs. Arnold H. E. Arenz, Mrs. Jesse M. Swink, Mrs. Johnson Mathewson and Mrs. Alvin P. Lewarton. Mrs. Alexander Kirby, honorary president, spoke of the responsibilities of all Army wives in helping one another as they travel from city to city, and country to country.

Mrs. James R. T. Buchanan, author of the book, "Prisoner of the Japs," and former war correspondent, talked on her experiences in the Far East and later as a newspaper correspondent in Occupied Japan. Major and Mrs. Buchanan are leaving soon to return to the Far East.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Ernest Fuhrmeister, Mrs. Johnson Mathewson, Mrs. Richard Jones and Mrs. Paul Blanding.

■ SEWART AFB, TENN. Selling Safety by the ground safety council here has paid off in what is believed to be one of the lowest motor vehicle rates of any Air Force Base. The 314th Troop Carrier Wing finished 1951 with a vehicle accident rate of .75% as calculated by the accident frequency rate formula of the National Safety Council. This formula has been adopted by the Air Force (AFM-32-3) and by all government agencies.

Sewart's "Sell Safety" slogan resulted in only 10 motor vehicle accidents during 1-336,703 miles driven during 1951 with a total cost to the government of only $3264.

■ CAMP ROBERTS, CALIF. Lt. Col. Jack L. Weiland, who as a private took basic training here in 1942, recently was appointed assistant chief of staff (G-3) in charge of training for the 7th Armored Division. He was formerly Chief of Division Faculty for Camp Roberts.

■ SALZBURG, AUSTRIA. The Women's Club met for their regular meeting at the Kavalier Haus Officers' Club, recently, at which time a list of candidates for officers in the Club, was presented. They will be voted on and installed at the February meeting.

The main attraction at the meeting was a quiz show conducted by the master of ceremonies, Lt. David Rosson, who went from table to table with a microphone asking questions and awarding prizes for the correct answers. This was transcribed by the Blue Danube Netwerk and plans are being made to have it broadcast over that station in the near future.

■ STEWART AFB, NEWBURGH, N. Y. Mrs. W. H. Williamson was elected president of the Officers' Wives' Club on 15 Jan. Other officers for the year are Mrs. John O'Toole, vice president; Mrs. Fred T. Hight, recording secretary; Mrs. Donald D. Renwick, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John F. Holt, treasurer; Mrs. James Kelleher, assistant treasurer; and Mrs. N. Reed Voss, member-at-large.

Crone said, in part, "We know very well how much time, money, and effort went into your gift, and I only wish you could see the faces of the little children who will receive them. Best wishes to all of you."

Another project developed by the AAA RTC Wives is the Thursday afternoon Coffee Party held at the Red Cross quarters in William Beaumont Army Hospital. Mrs. Mildred Mench, Red Cross Field Director, and Miss Miriam Chipperfield, Head Recreation Worker, both have congratulated Mrs. Heathcote and the group on the project, saying that the coffee parties "... are really becoming increasingly popular and are definitely anticipated by the patients and the staff."

FT. BENNING, GA. An old friendship was renewed when Lt. Gen. J. B. Piron, Belgian Army chief of staff, and Brig. Gen. Clare Armstrong, commander of the Third Army Antiaircraft Training Center at Camp Stewart, Ga., met here recently.

General Piron, who is touring U. S. military installations, first met General Armstrong when the American officer was with the Antwerp X Command organizing defense against the V-1 in Luxembourg during World War II. General Armstrong later was assigned as military attaché to Belgium and Luxembourg from 1946-1950. This is the first time the two generals have seen each other since General Armstrong's return to the U. S.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John M. Arthur, of Union, S. C. who are winter visitors at El Cordova Hotel, Coronado, are being welcomed by many Service friends. Col. and Mrs. R. G. Hunt entertained at a cocktail party honoring the Arthurs on their arrival and on 16 Jan. Mrs. John T. Selden, whose husband, Maj. Gen. Selden, USMC, is in Korea, entertained them at dinner at the MCRD Commissioned Officers' Club. On the 18th the Arthurs shared honors with Mrs. Allen Cockrell at a dinner party hosted by Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Glider D. Jackson, Jr. and on the following evening Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Chas. F. B. Price entertained the visitors at the La Jolla Beach and Tennis Club. Meeting the Arthurs at this dinner party given by the Prices, were: the Hunts, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Maurice Holmes and Capt. and Mrs. Sidney Dodds.

Complimenting Capt. William L. Erdmann, USN, and his charming bride, Capt. and Mrs. Charles M. Boudy entertained with a buffet supper in their NAS quarters on 20 January. Invitations to meet the Erdmanns were issued to: Rear Adms. and Mmes. Lloyd Harrison, Geo. R. Henderson, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Carmody and Comdr. and Mrs. Jas. Davis.

FT. LEE, VA. Capt. Stuart Hoskins, well known in Virginia sport circles, has been assigned as Special Services Officer, replacing Capt. Malcolm Brundage, who is due for an overseas assignment. A nine letter man at the University of Richmond, Captain Hoskins displayed his athletic prowess in baseball, basketball, and football.

Members of the Law Enforcement Council, composed of civil law enforcement officials from nearby cities and counties and their military counterparts, held their first meeting of the year on 22 Jan. The purpose of the council which is moderated by Col. Charles Hutchings, Jr., provost marshal, is to strengthen personal relations between the military and civil law enforcement officials. Col. John L. Wilson, formerly Post Engineer, has been named commanding officer of the 311th Engineer Construction Group at Camp Pickett, Va.

FT. MEADE, MD. Lt. Col. Charles Paterson has been appointed Second Army Headquarters Commandant by Lt. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, USA, commanding the seven-state area. Colonel Paterson, who returned from Korea last November after serving 13 months as a military advisor to a Republic of Korea regiment, replaces Lt. Col. Samuel E. Milliken, who has been ordered to the Far East.

PEPPERELL AFB, NFD. Maj. Elmer E. Skinner, husband of Mrs. Helen Skinner, 343 Raleigh St., S. E., Washington, D. C., has been assigned as provost marshal, according to the commanding officer, Col. J. G. Pratt. The major was a member of the Metropolitan Police Department in Washington, D. C., for 15 years. A reservist, he was ordered to active duty last April, serving as assistant air provost marshal for USAF Headquarters at Bolling AFB before his recent transfer to Pepperell.

CAMP PICKETT, VA. Maj. Vernon L. Klesath has been assigned to the Post Engineers Section. Coming to this Post from Ladd AFB, Alaska, Major Klesath was formerly on duty with the 4th Infantry Regiment. Major Klesath is married to the former Edith M. Fore. They have three children, Donna, age 17, Glenna J., 13, and Vernon L., Jr., 8.

FT. BUCHANAN, P. R. A traditional Three Kings Day party for the children of the men of the 20th Ordnance Medium Maintenance Company was held here 6 Jan. Dressed as the Kings, three members of the unit distributed over $2,500 worth of toys to the children. The company also gave a bicycle to their shoe shine boy, Vicente Garcia.

In addition to the men of the unit and their families, Col. Arthur E. Solem, commanding officer, and Lt. Col. Leonard W. Ricketson, Antilles Ordnance Officer, attended the party. First Sgt. Felipe Carrillo planned the celebration with the cooperation of all members of the company.

FT. BROOKE, P. R. Funds from the Army, Navy and several insular business firms provided a Three Kings Day party for approximately 5,000 poor children of San Juan. The entertainment was held 6 Jan. on the soccer field of Sixto Escobar Park in San Juan. The Mayores of San Juan, the Honorable Felisa Rincon de Gautier, headed the committee that organized the party. Armed Forces representatives on the committee were Chaplain (Maj.) John B. Retagliatta for the Army and Chaplain (Cdr.) Charles A. O'Neill for the Navy.

AUSTIN, TEX. All Volunteer Air Reserve Training Units throughout Texas and New Mexico are now assigned to the 3d Air Reserve District with Headquarters at 1414 LaVaca Street, Austin. Under USAF's new reserve decentralization policy, seven Volunteer Air Reserve Training Groups with their 35 VART Squadrons, were placed under command of this new Headquarters on 1 Jan. Prior to this order these Air Force Reserve Units were commanded by 14th Air Force at Robins AFB, Macon, Ga.

This assignment of Air Reserve Units to the 3d Air Reserve District will add punch to the Air Force's reserve training activities throughout Texas and New Mexico by cutting down the long lines of communication, providing more plans and closer training super-

SIGNAL CORPS CENTER AND FT. MONMOUTH, N. J. Lt. Col. M. B. Forbes, Senior Projects Officer of the Nucleonics Branch, Evans Signal Laboratory, spoke on "The A-Bomb and How It Works" at the regular monthly luncheon meeting of the Woman's Club held at Gibbs Hall on 9 Jan.

Mrs. K. B. Lawton, who has recently arrived at the Post, was introduced to the members by Mrs. E. A. Kenny, president. Mrs. Lawton succeeds Mrs. Harry Reichelderfer, who with Brig. Gen. Harry Reichelderfer has departed for Camp San Luis Obispo, as honorary president of the club.

Mrs. Fred J. Wood and Mrs. J. P. Fitzgibbon were among the luncheon guests.

MURPHY AR, MASS. Maywine and pink carnations and a large lovely appropriately embossed cake as a centerpiece decorated the U-shaped table when the wives of the officers of Murphy Army Hospital inaugurated the 1952 season with a luncheon sponsored by the wives of the Internes Staff. Hostesses were: Mrs. Dorothy Sebastian, wife of Lt. Eugene S. Sebastian; Mrs. Maxine Arno, wife of Lt. Irvin A. Arno; Mrs. Ruth Beuscher, wife of Lt. William F. Beuscher; Mrs. Evelyn Houck, wife of Lt. LeRoy P. Houck; and Mrs. Virginia Moody, wife of Lt. William M. Moody. The hostesses were rewarded for their painstaking efforts by an unusually large turnout. Mrs. Julia Gels, wife of Lt. Col. George W. Gels, Chief of Physical Medicine, the only one with a birthday in January, had the honor of cutting the birthday cake.

The main discussion of the luncheon was centered on Mrs. Erma Curcio, wife of Lt. Raymond J. Curcio of the Dental Service, who was absent for three good reasons—the births of Diane, Arlene and Kathleen Curcio. Mrs. Curcio and the triplets are doing well.

FT. HOOD, TEX. Col. Robert L. Thompson, former Eighth Army Public Information Officer in Japan and Korea, has been assigned as Director of Personnel here.

CAMP DETRICK, MD. Col. Noel A. Menard, former Army Field Forces Chemical Officer at Fort Benning, Ga., has been assigned to Camp Detrick as Director of Post Operations. He will assist Col. M. T. Moree, Commanding Officer, in all matters pertaining to administration, maintenance and personnel.

Two other administrative changes also have been announced. Lt. Col. Cecil D. Miller has been named Assistant for Personnel and Administration, and Lt. Col. Vincent L. Ruwet has been designated to succeed Colonel Miller as Executive Officer.

CAMP KILMER, N. J. Col. Thomas A. O'Neill, who commanded the 15th Infantry Regiment when it helped smash the "Iron Triangle" in Korea a few months ago, has been assigned as commanding officer of the Personnel Center here.

Colonel O'Neill left for Korea in August of 1950 as a battalion commander in the 3d Infantry Division's 7th Regiment. He took part in the Hungnam beachhead defense and later commanded a battalion in the 65th Regiment before he became a regimental commander.

BOISE, IDAHO. On 29 Dec., Col. C. H. Bragg, Chief, Idaho Military District, and Mrs. Bragg entertained at their home in Boise, Idaho, with a cocktail supper. In addition to the Military Personnel on duty with District Headquarters, and the ORC and NG Instructor Groups, the following were invited: Governor and Mrs. Len Jordan, The Adjutant General, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. J. E. Walsh; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Loren C. Maxwell, USAR, Ret.; Col. and Mrs. Phillip Doddridge and daughter, Sugar, State Director of Civil Defense; State Representative Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vernon; Col. H. S. Beeks, Air Force; Mr. Potter Howard, former Mayor of Boise; Col. and Mrs. Everett R. Hopper, USAR, and Mr. and Mrs. William Mullins.

HEIDELBERG, GERMANY. Lt. Col. Charles P. Stone, assistant to the deputy chief of staff for Operations, EUCOM, will attend the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., beginning 4 Feb.

OKINAWA. Lt. Col. George A. Barten, Ryukyus Command, Assistant Chief of Staff G-3, left recently for reassignment in the United States. His duties as Assistant Chief of Staff G-3 will be assumed by Col. Roger H. Holt, formerly with the G-4 Section.

Colonel Barten will return to Codorus, Pa., where his family resides, for a short period of leave before going to the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. He is married to the former Ortha D. Taylor of Codorus. They have two daughters, Caroline, 11, and Gail, 7.

BURTONWOOD AFB, ENGLAND. Bouquets of daffodils, lilacs and tulips provided the background at the New Year's Day reception in the Starlight Room of the Base Officer's Club, when the Commanding General of the 59th Air Depot Wing, Brig. Gen. Robert C. Oliver, and Mrs. Oliver received some 500 officers and their wives. Guests of honor were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Ralph A. Snavely from Copenhagen, Denmark, parents of General Oliver's Aide-de-Camp, Lt. James E. Snavely. They visited General and Mrs. Oliver for the Christmas season, enjoying a happy holiday reunion with old friends, their son, daughter-in-law, and two small granddaughters, Susan and Kathleen Snavely.

ALAMEDA MEDICAL DEPOT, CALIF. The Women's Club, a newly activated organization, held its first social gathering for officers and their wives and guests in the form of a New Year's Eve Dance. The program was prepared under the direction of Mrs. Stephen G. Asbill, wife of the Commanding Officer, ably assisted by members of the Women's Club.

German Arms Plans

local rioting marked by bloodshed, including the killing of the senior French Army commander in the Sousse Seaport area, 100 miles south of Tunis. Disorder had long been expected, and it was the Socialist disapproval of "strong" repressive measures which hastened the regretted downfall of the late Pleven government. The new coalition government, headed by Edgar Faure, Radical Socialist (the puzzled American must be reminded constantly that this party is neither radical nor socialist) has passed its first hurdle by proposing conciliation (which suits the Socialists) after a restoration of order (which suits the Middle parties of the coalition). The test vote was an encouraging 396-220, with the Gaullists and the Communists making up the opposition in the usual but grotesquely irrational manner. This is only a first test, and the Government's success must be attributed largely to the proper solidarity (always excepting the Communists and their odd allies) of Frenchmen in a national emergency. It is unlikely that M. Faure will always fare as well despite his success in getting into his cabinet such Middle-Party veterans as Mm. Schuman (Foreign Affairs) and Bidault (Defense). The Tunisian revolt, against which the French have been working shrewdly, but with limited success, by a gradual decentralization of authority in the various North African areas, comes at an unfortunate time, not alone for France but for the West, for any new diversion of French military strength must reduce the amount France can contribute to NATO.

Navy Postgrad Courses

The Navy announced this week that additional applications are desired from line officers of the Regular Navy (1300 and 1500 category officers) for postgraduate courses in Aeronautical Engineering, Aeronautical Engineering (Armament), Aeronautical Engineering (Electrical), Engineering Electronics, and Operations Analysis.

Applicants must meet eligibility requirements set forth in BuPers Circular Letter 68-51. Those who have previously applied in accordance with the Circular Letter "should not resubmit" applications, the Navy said. Applications must reach BuPers (Pers-B111H) by 29 Feb. 1952 and dispatch requests should be used where necessary to meet the deadline, the Navy said.

Navy Band Concert

The U. S. Navy Band will present a concert on Friday, 1 Feb., at the Department Auditorium, Washington, D. C., with CWO Richard E. Townsend conducting.

Three soloists will be featured on the program. Richard Larson will play Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2 Op. 18; Richard Bain will be featured on the harmonica in a rendition of Richard Rodgers' Slaughter on Tenth Avenue, and Ben Mitchell Morris, tenor, will sing several selections. Also included in the program will be the Water Music Suite of Handel and Eric Coates' Cinderella Fantasy.

The program will begin at 8:30 p. m. at the Departmental Auditorium, Constitution Avenue, between 12th and 14th Streets, N.W., Washington.

Commissary Prices

The President's Budget sent to Congress this week includes a renewal of the current provision against the use of its funds for the operation and maintenance of commissaries. It was this restriction that necessitated five per cent increases in prices in Army and Air Force commissaries.

Carabao Elects Officers

The Military Order of the Carabao, has elected Col. Douglas C. Cordiner, USA-Ret., to be its new National Commander, succeeding Vice Adm. Harry G. Hamlet, USCG-Ret.

Colonel Cordiner, now Deputy Governor of the U. S. Soldiers Home here, will be inducted as "Grand Paramount Carabao" at the 52d annual "Wallow" next month, along with a new slate of officers just chosen. The "Wallow" (or dinner) will be held in the Statler Hotel, 16 Feb.

The historic and colorful Carabao Order was founded in Manila in 1900 by veterans of the Philippine Insurrection. Since then its ranks have been filled by veterans of later Philippine campaigns, including World War II. Among the former heads of the Order are: General Douglas MacArthur, Admiral William F. Halsey, and General Carl Spaatz.

Brig. Gen. Merritt B. Curtis, USMC-Ret., was elected "Grand Lead and Wheel Carabao," No. 2 post in the Order. Comdr. Earle D. Chesney, USNR, and Capt. Walter Karig, USN, will be in charge of the "Wallow," assisted by Lt. Col. William F. H. Santelmann, leader of the Marine Band.

The 1952 slate of officers follows: Grand Paramount Carabao (National Commander), Col. Douglas C. Cordiner, USA-Ret.

Grand Lead & Wheel Carabao, Brig. Gen. Merritt B. Curtis, USMC.

Director de la Flesta, Capt. Walter Karig, USN.

Director de Musica, Lt. Col. William F. H. Santelmann, USMC.

Grand Patriarch of the Herd (1st Vice-Comdr.), Col. Joseph F. Siler, USA.

Bell Carabao (2d Vice-Comdr.), Col. Richard D. LaGarde, USA; Assistant, Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge, USA.

Grand Councilor of the Herd (3d Vice-Comdr.), Rear Adm. George W. Calver, USN.

Grand Jefe los Bebidos (5th Vice-Comdr.), Col. Frank Halford, USMC.

Grand Jefe los Cangadores (6th Vice-Comdr.), Brig. Gen. William J. Flood, USAF.

Main Guard, Rear Adm. William B. Young, USN; Assistant, Rear Adm. Charles H. K. Miller, USN.

Winder of the Horn, Col. Jean W. Moreau, USMC; Assistant, Brig. Gen. Martin F. Scanlon, USAF.

Carrentonero, Maj. Robert P. Leonard, USMCR.

Gambolling Carabao, Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlop, USA.

Veterinero, Capt. Joseph J. Kaveney, USN.

Jefe Vaquero, Capt. Lucius C. Dunn, USN.

Lead & Swing Carabao, Maj. William J. G. Davis, USAF.

Director de la Banquete, Comdr. Earle D. Chesney, USNR; Assistant, Lt. Col. Thomas G. Carney, AUS.

Director de la Prensa, Col. Elmer J. Smith, USAF.

Director de la Informacion, Lt. John G. Norris, USNR.

Consejero General, Comdr. Joseph A. Carey, USN.

Blood Program

More than one-third of the total program requirement for whole blood has been met by the Armed Forces Blood Donor Program, the American Red Cross and the Department of Defense has announced.

Blood collections for the eighteenth week of the Program brought the total to 1,058,853 pints of whole blood since the start of the campaign September 10, 1951.

During the week 7-13 Jan. 1952, a total of 59,175 pints of whole blood was collected for the Program, which is sponsored jointly by the Department of Defense and the American Red Cross. This was an increase of 37,291 pints over the previous week, but is still 15,825 pints below the weekly goal of 75,000 pints.

Navy Chaplains Meet

Fleet, Force, and District Chaplains will attend a conference for Supervisory Chaplains of the Navy to be conducted in the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Washington, D. C. 28-31 Jan.

War In Korea

the eastern front they destroyed numerous enemy bunkers.

Night Bombing

All-weather B-29 medium bombers from Okinawa and Japan made night attacks on transportation facilities in Northwest Korea. The Sinanju east rail by-pass bridge across the Chongchong River was hit by 500-lb. high explosive bombs dropped by Superforts from Okinawa. The bombers experienced moderate flak and sighted enemy fighters which failed to attack.

Other B-29s hit the Kyomipo marshalling yards where they encountered considerable anti-aircraft fire. Still other medium bombers from Japan flew in close support of front-line Allied troops, dropping 500-lb. air-bursting bombs on enemy concentrations.

American B-26 light bombers and Marine aircraft attacked vehicular traffic, destroying scores of trucks. The light bombers also hit a rail bridge at Sinanju. One B-26 was attacked by an unidentified aircraft between Sinanju and Chinnampo, but was not damaged.

In a summary of last week's operations the Far East Air Force announced that 5,700 sorties were flown during the period ending 18 Jan. During the week three enemy MIG jets were destroyed and 7 damaged, while two American F-86 Sabre Jets were lost in air combat. In addition 8 Allied planes were lost to ground fire or unknown causes. They included two Marine F-4Us, one B-26 light bomber, one F-84 Thunder Jet, one F-80 Shooting Star, and 3 F-51 Mustangs.

Damage to Enemy

During the week air attacks destroyed or damaged 495 enemy vehicles, 14 locomotives, 220 rail cars, 2 tunnels, 40 bridges, 735 buildings, and 10 tanks. It is estimated that land planes inflicted 375 casualties on enemy troops during the week. These figures do not include destruction or damage inflicted by carrier-based planes.

For the period of the war through 18 Jan. the Reds lost 204 MIGs destroyed, 51 probably destroyed, and 332 damaged. Losses of Red aircraft of all types are 339 destroyed in the air or on the ground, 100 probably destroyed, and 387 damaged.

Losses of American aircraft of the Fifth Air Force during the war include 133 jet planes lost to ground fire and 37 in air combat, for a total of 170; and 230 propeller-driven planes to ground fire and 15 in air combat, for a total of 245, making the aggregate Fifth Air Force combat losses 415 planes. In addition 11 friendly foreign planes and 31 shore-based Marine planes attached to the Fifth Air Force were lost bringing the over-all total losses of land planes to 457. These losses do not include carrier-based Navy, Marine and Allied planes, but such losses have been relatively small.

The Department of Defense this week announced a total of 104,644 American battle casualties in the Korean war, to include all reported to the next of kin through 18 Jan. Of the total 18,049 were killed in action or died of wounds; 75,819 were wounded in action, including 1,708 who subsequently died; and 12,674 missing in action, of whom 190 are determined to have died, 1,391 returned to military control and 174 are known to be prisoners, leaving 10,919 currently missing.

Of the total casualties 85,835 were sustained by the Army, 1,203 by the Navy, 16,622 by the Marine Corps, and 984 by the Air Force.

Col. Vitzthum SC I. G.

Col. Harry L. Vitzthum has been named Inspector General of the Signal Corps. He had been Chief of the Operations Review Division and, prior to that, Assistant Chief of Procurement and Distribution Division in the Office of the Chief Signal Officer.

Also assigned to the Office of the Inspector General, which came into existence on 12 Jan., was Lt. Col. Allen T. Stanwix-Hay, who had been Assistant Chief of Operations Review Division.

Lt. Phyllis L. Partridge, USNR

The many Service friends of Phyllis L. Partridge will be saddened to learn of her death at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York City on 17 Jan.

Phyllis was the daughter of Col. Lloyd S. Partridge, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Partridge of 237 Devonshire Pl., NW, Washington, D. C., and the sister of Maj. Alan L. Partridge, (USMA '44), who is now stationed in Germany.

She was born at Fort Knox, Ky., and lived on many Army posts in the United States, the Philippines, and Hawaii.

She attended Iowa State College and also Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va., where she was graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1943. She was a member of Tri Sigma Sorority.

Following her graduation, she was commissioned as an Ensign in the USNR (Waves), and attained the rank of Lieutenant. After being placed on the Inactive List in 1946, she entered the Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing and received a Bachelor of Science degree from Columbia University in 1949. Since graduation she has been an instructor in nursing at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center.

Funeral services were held at Arlington National Cemetery on 22 Jan., 1952.

Maj. Hugh Casey, USA

Maj. Hugh B. Casey, USA, has been killed in action in Korea, according to word received in New York on 17 Jan. from the Department of Defense by his parents, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Hugh J. Casey, USA-Ret., of 120 East End Avenue.

Major Casey, 26, had been on active duty in Korea since November 1950. He had volunteered in August of 1951 to remain in Korea instead of returning to this country on rotation.

At the time of his death, Major Casey was serving with Headquarters, X Corps, as senior aide to Maj. Gen. Williston B. Palmer, USA. Previously he had served as commanding officer of Company G, 2d Battalion, 7th Infantry Regiment, 3d Division, and executive officer, of the 2d Battalion, 7th Infantry Regiment, 3d Division. He was awarded two Silver Stars for gallantry in Korean fighting.

Survivors in addition to his parents include a brother, Keith, and a sister, Patricia, who is the wife of Maj. Frank B. Clay, son of General Lucius B. Clay, USA-Ret.

General Casey is now an executive of Schenley Industries, Inc., in New York.

A graduate of the Class of 1918 at the U. S. Military Academy, General Casey retired from the Army in 1949. Throughout World War II, he served as chief engineer for General of the Army Douglas MacArthur in the Pacific.

Mrs. Ellen S. Bassett

Mrs. Ellen Stuart Bassett, the wife of Rear Adm. Frederic Brewster Bassett, USN-Ret., of 2959 St. Johns Avenue, Jacksonville, Fla., died at the Naval Hospital, Jacksonville, on 13 Jan. after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Bassett was born in Morristown, N. J., and was the daughter of John and Louise Foote Stuart who moved to Florida in 1878 and established their home at Fort George, near Jacksonville. She lived in Europe and the Far East for many years and later in Washington, D. C. After World War I she returned to her family home at Fort George, where she lived until moving to Jacksonville a few years ago.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Bassett is survived by a son, Victor Blue, an attorney, and a sister, Mrs. Marion Stuart Terry, both of Jacksonville, and a granddaughter, Eleanor Stuart Blue, of New York City. Mrs. Bassett's first husband, Rear Adm. Victor Blue, USN, died in 1928, and her other son, Comdr. John Stuart Blue, USN, was lost in the sinking of the USS Juneau off Guadalcanal in 1942.

Col. Walter T. O'Reilly

Col. Walter T. O'Reilly of the Research and Development Section, Office, Chief of Army Field Forces, died 17 Jan. at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C. Colonel O'Reilly was a liaison officer representing Army Field Forces in the Pentagon. He was admitted to Walter Reed on 3 Dec.

Born in Trinidad, Colo., Colonel O'Reilly maintained residence in Denver, and attended the Colorado School of Mines from 1914 to 1917. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1919. He also attended the law school of George Washington University in Washington, D. C. for two years.

Prior to World War II he was stationed in Hawaii for three years. During the war he served in the southwest Pacific. He took part in operations crossroads at Bikini.

Colonel O'Reilly is a graduate of both the basic and advanced courses at the Artillery School, Ft. Sill, Okla., and the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

Surviving are his widow, the former Marian B. Fitzgerald of Brattleboro, Vt., of 4408-39th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., and two children, Hugh T., 18, and Cornelia A., 16.

Military funeral services were held 22 Jan. in the Ft. Myer, Va. Chapel. Burial was at Arlington Cemetery.

1st Lt. Roscoe Fletcher Good, Jr., USMC

Private interment services for 1st Lt. Roscoe Fletcher Good, Jr., USMC, who was killed in action in Korea on 24 April 1951 will be held at Arlington National Cemetery on 29 Jan.

Lieutenant Good was the son of Rear Adm. Roscoe F. Good, USN, and Mrs. Good of 310 Kentucky Ave., Beverly Hills, Alexandria, Va. In addition to his parents, he is survived by his widow and two young children, Roxanne, 5, and Roscoe Fletcher Good, 4th, 3, whose address is 3113 Russell Rd., Beverly Hills, Alexandria.

Born in Panama, 1 April 1922, Lieutenant Good's enlisted and commissioned record in the U. S. Marine Corps from 1942 included service in World War II largely as a squadron bomber-navigator with Marine Bombing Squadron 533, and later with the Tenth and Eleventh Marines. He participated in the Inchon landing and Chosen Reservoir operations in Korea, before he was killed in action, while serving as an airborne artillery observer. His decorations included the Presidential Unit Citation with four Stars.

Slate Airmen Promotions

The Air Force has announced authorization for 43,950 airmen promotions during February to ranks of corporal and above.

The quotas include 500 to master sergeant, 1250 to technical sergeant, 7200 to staff sergeant, 13,000 to sergeant, and 22,000 to corporal.

Lant Fleet Reserve Quotas

The Navy has announced that Atlantic Fleet Reserve Cruises will be available to about 1460 officers and 7070 enlisted personnel during the months of January, February and March. The first cruise, involving various types of ships, began 5 Jan.

Services Support UMT

The top military leaders of the four Armed Services testified before the House Armed Services Committee this week in support of legislation which would put Universal Military Training into practice.

Although the Congress approved the principle of UMT in its previous session, last year, it is now in the process of preparing further legislation which will set forth the rules for administration and discipline of the National Security Training Corps.

Hearings this week were devoted largely to opponents of the bill. One, Bishop Wilbur E. Hammaker, head of the Methodist Church's National Temperance and Prohibition Council, urged Congress to prohibit the sale of beer in camps where UMT will be put into effect.

The service leaders had this to say about the bill:

Chiefs Give Views

General J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff—"Korea has proved to us once again that we need a sound program of manpower mobilization. . . . Had National Security Training been in effect since the last war we would have had a pool of trained men as individuals and as members of Reserve and National Guard units available for service when it became necessary for us to combat aggression in Korea. We would not have had to disrupt the lives of thousands of men who had served in World War II and who had since taken on greater responsibilities both at home and in their civilian pursuits. . . . I believe there is a self-evident requirement to initiate National Security Training at the earliest practicable time."

Admiral William M. Fechteler, Chief of Naval Operations—"I think we must face the possibility that, unless we build a strong, young, vital reserve force, it may be necessary to increase existing operating forces. . . . Under the terms of the Armed Forces Reserve Act, as approved by the House, men who perform four years of active duty do not have a ready reserve obligation and may, if they so desire, go immediately into the standby reserve where their availability for duty is lessened. In short, the Navy's ready reserve almost entirely consists of men who volunteer to assume that liability. Other than the men procured through the Universal Military Training Program, no one would be obligated to serve in the Navy's ready reserve. That is why the inauguration and expansion of UMT is particularly vital to the future of the Navy Reserve Program."

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff—"Congress in laying the groundwork for Universal Military Training, during the past session, created the National Security Training Commission and delegated to it the responsibility of studying the problem. The Air Force has consistently supported the principle of Universal Military Training, and it supports the Commission's findings. . . . We feel that the establishment of an effective UMT program can help toward the attainment of enduring strength."

General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Marine Commandant—"I consider this legislation to be adequate for its purpose and believe that it will provide the necessary framework within which UMT may become a reality. . . . I support this legislation because I believe that UMT will improve the military posture of our country."

List UMT Bases

The military leaders disclosed that the Defense Department will be ready to set up a limited UMT program next fall, if approval is given, with an initial group of 60,000 young men (all volunteers) who will be given six months training at 17 bases, followed by 18 months of active service.

The tentative list of bases at which UMT would be conducted under the partial implementation are:

CNO Warns Against Forces Growing "Out of Balance"

In the wake of a budget which gives the Navy the smallest slice of military appropriations for fiscal 1953, Admiral William M. Fechteler spoke out strongly this week in defense of Naval carrier operations, recommending "an extended use of naval power."

The Chief of Naval Operations warned in a speech at the Sulgrave Club in Washington, D. C., on 24 Jan., that our capabilities "must not grow out of balance." He said "much of our safety depends upon a wise choice of armaments."

Speaking on "The Navy and Mobility," he repeatedly stressed the theme that Naval carrier task forces are free of "the shackling influence of prepared positions," "embarrassing international commitments," and the danger of becoming "a part of foreign real estate."

He said, "The weapons which will serve us most are those of which we may make multiple use, and which require in that use a minimum of expensive supporting facilities."

The mobile force provided by the Navy, he said, "is one which is entirely free of the shackling influence of prepared positions such as bases, forts and landing fields." Such power, he added, "provides a poor target for enemy retaliation and a poor object for enemy sabotage," and has "the overwhelming advantage of being susceptible of movement to the point where danger lies and the additional advantage of being free to return home when the danger is past." He said, furthermore, "Naval forces do not become a part of foreign real estate."

He pointed out that "the carrier is in essence a floating airfield" which, "when the war is over . . . may be returned to the United States and remain available to be used again."

The CNO stated that "No prearranged international commitment is necessary to enable us to use the sea. We need no base rights, no expensive construction ashore. We may come and go at will limited only by the depth of water." He suggests that "embarrassing international commitments may well be avoided in large part by a naval use of international waters when we are free to move and be at will with obligations to no one."

Discussing "a wise choice of armaments," Admiral Fechteler says the U. S. "must have a diversification of arms" and warns that "Our capability to attack an enemy and to defend ourselves must not grow out of balance."

He said, "We must control the seas if we are to prosper. Only ships and the weapons which they may carry can keep the sea for us and our Allies."

Disability Retirement Pay

The Comptroller General has ruled (B-106458) as follows in regard to the disability retirement pay of a Naval Reserve officer under certain stated conditions:

"An officer of the Naval Reserve who served in the military or naval forces prior to 12 Nov. 1918 and whose name was placed on the temporary disability retired list on or after 1 Oct. 1949, in conformity with the provisions of section 402 (b) of the Career Compensation Act of 1949 is entitled to have his disability retirement pay computed on the basis of 75 per centum of his active duty pay at the time of retirement as prescribed in the fourth paragraph of section 15 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, rather than on the basis prescribed in section 402 (d) of the Career Compensation Act of 1949."

The decision grew out of the case of Comdr. Arthur F. Morash, USNR, who was placed on the temporary disability retired list 1 April 1951, in conformity with the provisions of section 402(b) of the Career Compensation Act of 1949.

Cargo Helicopters

The first cargo helicopter manufactured for the Army has been delivered at Ft. Bragg, N. C. The craft is the first of 97 ordered for delivery during 1952 from Sikorsky Aircraft Division of United Aircraft Corporation, Bridgeport, Conn.

The cargo 'copters will be operated by the newly-created Helicopter Transport Companies of the Army Transportation Corps.

Test Armored Jacket

A new type of armored jacket developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps, shown by ballistic tests to be superior to previously existing lightweight body armor, will be tested by combat troops in Korea starting next month.

The new jacket is made of laminated nylon covered with a water-proof outer shell. Made without sleeves, the garment reaches to the waist, weighs only eight pounds, and may be worn either inside or outside of other clothing.

The Army-developed jacket resists a .45-calibre pistol bullet at point-blank range, stops practically all fragments from a grenade bursting at a distance of three feet, and 75 per cent of the fragments from a mortar burst at a distance of ten feet.

The new jacket is flexible, making it more adaptable to the movements of its wearer than is the Doron jacket, which was made up of several rigid panels set into pockets and separated by unprotected spaces.

Studies of the penetration-resisting properties of the new body armor indicate that it may reduce battle casualties considerably. With its use it is believed that wounds which otherwise result in death would be reduced to injuries only, and the severity of wounds incurred would be lessened. The jacket covers areas shown by Korean battle-wound studies by the Army Medical Service, in cooperation with representatives of other services, to be parts of the body where most serious wounds are received.

Within the next few weeks, 1,400 of the new armored jackets will be sent to Korea for issue to a regiment of combat Infantry troops. An initial lot will be tested in the Far East early in February by instructional teams composed of Army personnel which will indoctrinate the prospective wearers in the use of body armor.

The new armored jacket is of dark green color, matching the combat uniform. It has two patch pockets and belt loops through which the cartridge belt may be worn.

The jacket is still in the development stage and is not yet available for issue to troops except for test purposes.

N. Y. QMC Purchasing Chief

Col. Fulton G. Thompson is the new chief of the QM Purchasing Division, New York Quartermaster Procurement Agency. He succeeds Col. Henry R. McKenzie, Brig. Gen. R. P. Hollis, USA, is commanding general.

Colonel Thompson comes to the Agency from the Columbus, Ohio, General Depot, where he served as Quartermaster Supply Officer and, later, Executive Officer. He previously had served from 1948 to 1950 as Logistics Officer of the Military Aid Mission to Greece.

Colonel McKenzie, who served with the Agency since July 1950 as Executive Officer to the Commanding General and, as Chief of the QM Purchasing Division, has been reassigned as Chief Quartermaster, U. S. Forces in Austria, with headquarters in Salzburg.

Robot Pilot For Carrier

The Navy has accepted its first automatic steering system for aircraft carriers, it is announced by the Sperry Gyroscope Co. at Great Neck, N. Y. The robot helmsman will be installed aboard the U.S.S. Oriskany.

The device is a tubeless version of the Sperry electronic automatic pilot developed to steer destroyer escorts controlled by radio from aircraft in a special project during the war.

A magnetic "brain" which anticipates steering motions replaces conventional electron tubes used to control earlier automatic pilots. The magnetic "brain" was developed especially for heavy duty naval use.

Without human aid, the robot will steer prescribed zigzags and follow course schedules computed by special navigation devices. It will also hold the ship precisely to straight gyro courses, despite disturbing forces of wind and sea. It is capable of turning the ship to a new course in the least possible time without overshooting the course.

Build Picket Boats

Award of contracts for construction of 148 45-foot picket boats was announced this week by Rear Adm. Homer N. Wallin, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Ships.

Total value of contract awards is $4,918,000. "Lead yard" will be the Hacker Boat Company, Mt. Clemens, Mich., which will be responsible for preparing and distributing detailed plans to other builders. There will be no centrally procured material, the Navy said.

Contracts were awarded to: Hubert S. Johnson, Boat Manufacturing Co., Inc., Bay Head, N. J., 11 boats to be delivered at Bayonne, N. J.; Hacker Boat Co., Mt. Clemens, Mich., 25 boats to be delivered at Bayonne, N. J.; Wheeler Boat Co., Freeport, N. Y., 25 boats to be delivered at Norfolk, Va.; Vaughan Shipyards, Inc., Wickford, R. I., 27 boats to be delivered at Norfolk, Va.; Fellows and Stewart, Inc., Wilmington, Calif., 35 boats to be delivered at San Diego, Calif.; and Blanchard Boat Co., Seattle, Wash., 25 boats to be delivered at San Diego, Calif.

Receives Army Honor

Curtis E. Maier, general manager, Research Division of Continental Can Company, has been presented with an Army Certificate of Appreciation Award for patriotic service during World War II. The Certificate, signed by Secretary Frank Pace, jr., was presented to Mr. Maier by Col. Thomas F. Joyce, Chief of the Illinois Military District, Navy Pier, Chicago, Ill., on 16 Jan.

Mr. Maier made a complete investigation in 1945 of the methods and materials employed by leading can manufacturing companies in Germany, particularly during World War II.

Superliner's Maiden Voyage Set For 3 July

The 52,000 gross-ton superliner United States, now nearing completion at Newport News, Va., will sail from New York 3 July on her maiden voyage to Le Havre and Southampton according to an announcement by John M. Franklin, president of the United States Lines. The 990-foot vessel, the largest and fastest ever built in this country, will have a speed in excess of 30 knots and will incorporate the newest features of modern design to assure safety, comfort and speed. The ship will undergo a series of sea trials beginning in May.

The United States, which will be air-conditioned throughout, including the quarters of the 1,000-man crew, has used more aluminum in its construction than any other single structure on land or sea. The liner's two stacks, the largest in the world, are 65 feet long, 55 feet high and made entirely of aluminum. The ship will offer accommodations for 2,000 passengers. It contains many special defense features and can be converted into a transport to carry 14,000 troops.

High Seas T.V. Says Admiral

The day will come when ocean liners will be in constant sight of either side of the Atlantic by means of television, Rear Adm. Thomas P. Wynkoop, jr., USN-Ret., President of the Radiomarine Corporation of America, declared in an address last week before the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers in New York City.

"Television will be a new safety factor and a new lookout over the ocean waves," said Admiral Wynkoop. "And for fishermen, there will be underwater cameras that will spot schools of fish. Divers, too, will find these TV cameras most helpful in their search for wrecks. Television will take its place beside radio in modern sagas of the sea."

Electronics Center Manager

Homer R. Oldfield, jr. has been appointed resident manager of the recently established General Electric Advanced Electronics Center at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. This announcement is made by Brig. Gen. Tom C. Rives, Ret., manager of the Center, whose headquarters are at the Electronics Park, Syracuse, N. Y.

Mr. Oldfield went on active duty in 1941 with the Coast Artillery Corps, participating in work on early microwave gun-laying radar. He became Chief of the Electronics Section of the Anti-aircraft Artillery Board in 1943.

He later was promoted to Major and assigned to the Equipment Division of the Air Communications Office, where he was in charge of the Air Force program for developing airborne fire control radar systems.

Intensify Basic Research

Increased Air Force support of basic research in universities is forecast as a result of the establishment of an Office of Scientific Research in the Air Research and Development Command, Baltimore.

Col. Oliver G. Haywood, jr., a member of the research staff at the Los Alamos, N. M., Scientific Laboratory, will head the Office, whose Chief Scientist will be Dr. Selby M. Skinner, formerly Director of Research and Development in the Chicago Operations Office of the Atomic Energy Commission. Dr. Skinner served as an Army colonel in World War II.

Colonel Haywood, the Number 1 man in the 1936 class at the U. S. Military Academy, worked on the Manhattan Project as an assistant to Lt. Gen. Leslie Groves, USA-Ret., Commanding General.

In 1947, he was Assistant to the Director of Research of the AEC and later that year became Chief of the Research and Development Branch, Operations Division, War Department General Staff. He holds an M.S. in chemical engineering from Harvard and a doctorate of science degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Colonel and Mrs. Haywood, formerly Helen Elizabeth Salisbury of South Orange, N. J., have four children, Barbara, Betty, Richard, and Robert. Colonel Haywood's present address is 4 N. Southwood Ave., Annapolis, Md.

Ship Loaded Trailers

A new express service providing direct transportation of fully loaded truck trailers from inland depots in the United States to overseas ports of delivery is being developed by the Army Transportation Corps.

A pilot shipment of the special service, called "VANEX," recently left the San Francisco Port of Embarkation for the Far East.

The first shipment, consisting of three trailers of standard commercial design, each carrying complete individual shipments, was received early this month at San Francisco. It originated at the Benicia, Calif., Ordnance Depot, and was hauled by motor vehicle of a commercial trucking firm directly to shipside. There the trailers were lifted aboard freight vessels as deck cargo.

Steel Vets Honor War Dead

An impressive cenotaph was recently dedicated to men of Armco Steel Corporation who gave their lives in World War I and II. Fashioned of Armco Stainless Steel and placed at the approach to the company's East Works plant in Middletown, Ohio, it commands the attention of all the 5,000 employees and many daily visitors. At night it is illuminated with lamps kept burning constantly in the deep throat of the graceful, leaf-life cenotaph.

$52.1 Billion To Services In '53 Budget

The Budget Message sent to Congress this week by the President requests $52.1 billion in new obligatory authority for the military services for Fiscal Year 1953, out of a total Federal Budget of $84.3 billion for the entire Government. This compares with $61 billion in new obligatory authority granted or proposed for the military services for the current fiscal year ending 30 June 1952, out of a total of $93.4 billion for all Government purposes.

The budget plans for the maintenance of our military strength, and for expanding toward security goals, which contemplate an Air Force of 143 wings, an Army of 21 divisions, a Navy with 406 major combat vessels in the active fleet, and 16 large carrier air groups, a Marine Corps of 3 divisions, and supporting elements for all services.

The goal of 143 Air Force wings, fully operational and equipped with the latest and most effective planes, is not expected to be reached before 1955 or 1956. However, most of the other objectives are in sight, and nearly all of them will be reached during the coming fiscal year, if not before.

The estimates provide for an increase in total armed strength from 3.6 million, now authorized and nearly attained, to 3.7 million, with all of the increase going to the Navy, including the Marine Corps, and the Air Force. The Army will drop from its present strength of 1,580,000 to 1,550,000, due largely to a decrease in the requirement for training personnel; the Navy will go up from 790,000 to 835,000; the Marine Corps from 217,000 to 242,750; and the Air Force from 890,000 to 1,051,000.

Active Service Goals

The Army will continue to have 20 divisions in active service, one less than the ultimate goal; the Navy will increase from 14 to 16 carrier air groups before the end of the current fiscal year; and the Marine Corps will be increased from its present two and one-third divisions to three within the next few months. It is proposed to increase the strength of the Organized Reserve and National Guard from 525,000, as of last October, to 832,000 by 30 June 1953. The budget provides for 298,000 National Guards and 215,000 Organized Reserves in a drill pay status for the Army; 175,000 Naval and 32,000 Marine Corps Reserves, and 17,000 Air National Guard and 38,000 Air Force Reserves in drill pay status.

Funds are provided in the budget for the continued construction of the big new flush-deck Navy aircraft carrier, and for starting construction on another new carrier of the same type. The Navy will have in active service 406 major combat ships and 783 other vessels.

Though the new obligatory authority requested for all Government purposes in the 1953 budget is $9.1 billion less than for the current fiscal year, and for military purposes $7.9 billion less than for this year, the actual expenditures in F.Y. 1953 will be much greater than in 1952. Estimated expenditures for all Federal purposes for the year ending 30 June 1953 are $85.4 billion as compared with 70.9 billion for the current year; and expenditures for military purposes in F.Y. 1953 are expected to be $50 billion as compared with $39 billion for this year.

Difference Explained

The difference between amounts authorized to be spent and actual expenditures in any one year arises from the fact that procurement contracts may be negotiated in one year and actual payments and deliveries extended over one or more subsequent years. Actual expenditures, therefore, may include considerable amounts paid under authorizations granted by the Congress in previous fiscal years, because the new obligatory authorities often cover contracts on which most of the payments will be made in future years.

Of the $52.1 billion included as authorizations for the military services in the new budget $500 million is for the Office of the Secretary of Defense, approximately the same as authorized for the current year; $14.2 billion is for the Army, as compared with $20.9 billion for the present year; $13.2 billion is for the Navy, including the Marine Corps, as compared with $16 billion for F.Y. 1952; and $20.7 billion for the Air Force, as compared with $22.1 billion for the current year.

The sum of these allocations is $48.6 billion for F.Y. 1953, and $59.5 billion for F.Y. 1952. However, additional estimates amounting to $3.5 billion will be submitted to Congress later, bringing the total amount for 1953 to $52.1 billion. Similarly supplemental military estimates for the current year amounting to $1.5 billion will also be transmitted at a later date, bringing actual and proposed authorizations for F.Y. 1952 to $61 billion.

Directly related to the military services are estimates for stockpiling strategic and critical materials, and other activities, such as the research work of the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics, Selective Service, and the National Security Training Commissions, though funds for these activities are not included in military appropriations. Estimates covering these activities for F.Y. 1953 are $300 million, as compared with $700 million for the current year. The decrease is largely due to a much smaller allocation for stockpiling, due to the fact that critical materials in great quantities are required for current war production, and hence are not available for the stock pile.

The reduction in the amounts requested for new obligatory authority for military purposes for F.Y. 1953 as compared with this year is due to a combination of factors, both military and economic. Original estimates of the military services for F.Y. 1953 totaled about $70 billion, or some $18 billion in excess of the final budget figure. However, discussion of various elements, including availability of basic materials and machine tools, production capacities, other essential requirements, foreign commitments, and the fiscal position of the Government and the effect on the economy of the country, resulted in a decrease in the estimates. This will have the effect of spreading the program over a longer period, but not of curtailing it, or of changing the ultimate goals. As a matter of fact, the decrease in estimates will have little effect during the Fiscal Year 1953, as previous commitments, except in a few cases, are not being cut back, and the production rate will continue to be accelerated throughout the next year and a half.

Original Program

The original program set in motion something more than a year ago was found to be over-optimistic and unrealistic. It provided for reaching peak production at an earlier date than was found feasible, and even were this rate to be achieved it would be followed by a sudden decline in war production, with resultant economic dislocations. In the light of experience it was deemed better to strive to reach an attainable plateau of production, and to continue at that level for several years until initial equipment and war reserve requirements have been met, and then taper off gradually to a maintenance and replacement basis, involving annual expenditures of perhaps $40 billion for all military purposes.

With respect to availability of scarce materials it was felt that it would be wiser to allocate some such supplies for expansion of productive facilities, particularly for new steel and aluminum plants, rather than to use them directly in finished munitions of war. By the construction of new facilities our ultimate war production capacity would be greatly enlarged, and our military potential would be enhanced. As between immediate increased production and broadening the industrial base for greater protection in an all-out emergency the latter appeared to be the most desirable choice.

Hold Down Deficit

Unquestionably the undesirability of further increases in the Federal deficit, and thus adding to the national debt, was also an important factor in the decision to reduce amounts of new authorizations requested in the budget. There is strong opposition both in and out of Congress

Personnel Policies

tory retirement system was considered by the President as a desirable goal, but that there was little likelihood that the suggestion would result in legislation by the present Congress. The non-contributory system has been in force for nearly a century and it is quite likely that no change will be made without an exhaustive study.

Share Retirement Costs

In his message the President expressed concern about the very large future obligations accruing under the present retirement system, with no provision for funding these obligations except through current annual appropriations. He suggested that the Congress examine all Federal retirement laws to determine the feasibility of a "contributory system in which career military personnel and the Government share in the establishment and maintenance of a retirement fund adequate to meet the rapidly increasing costs of military retirement benefits."

The President, it will be noted, referred only to "career military personnel" in connection with his suggestion for a contributory retirement system. Many thousands of members of the civilian components are eligible for retirement benefits, and a large portion of current and accruing obligations for retirement payments arises from the fact that recent legislation extends such benefits to non-career personnel.

The suggestion of a contributory military retirement system has been investigated frequently by the services, one of the most recent studies having been made by the Hook Commission in 1948, which developed the Career Compensation Act of 1949. The Hook Commission, after long and painstaking study, opposed the establishment of a contributory system, but in recommending pay scales took into consideration the fact that military personnel have the benefit of a non-contributory retirement system. By making the pay less than would be proposed if part were devoted to retirement contributions the Commission felt that administrative costs of maintaining a contributory system would be saved, and the net result would be the same.

Old Age Payments

In discussing pending legislation for survivor benefits for families of service personnel the President said that he believed that coverage of Social Security old age and survivors' insurance should be extended to members of the Armed Forces. The military survivors' benefit system, he said, should be designed to provide supplemental benefits scaled to the earnings in excess of those covered by Social Security.

In another section of his message relating to the Federal Security Agency he again urged extension of coverage of old age and survivors' benefit insurance to military personnel. While there has been some discussion of extension of Social Security benefits to civilian employees of the Government, either supplementary to or in substitution for the present Civil Service retirement system, this is the first time that the President has advocated bringing military personnel under Social Security.

With respect to the Pay Bill the President said that the military budget includes an amount estimated to be sufficient to cover the cost of increases in military pay and allowances comparable to those granted civilian employees of the Government last year. The bill passed the House overwhelmingly and is now before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Considerable opposition on economy grounds has arisen in the Senate.

Three legislative proposals for strengthening civilian components of the Armed Forces were advocated by the President in his budget message. One of these, Universal Military Training, he said, would be put in effect early in Fiscal Year 1953, on a limited scale, if the statutory basis is provided. In the opinion of the President the pending Armed Services Reserve Bill to establish three classes of Reserves—ready, stand-by and retired—would provide a more equitable and uniform policy, applicable to Reserve personnel of all services. The Reserve Officers' Training Corps Bill, he said, would provide for reorganizing and strengthening the college officer procurement programs.

Text of Message

THE text of those portions of the President's budget message referring to the personnel of the Armed Forces follows:

Pay Increases

"It is likely that we shall have to maintain relatively large military forces for a long time to come. This fact raises three problems with respect to the welfare of military personnel that will require legislative action. The first is legislation proposed by the Administration to make increases in military pay and allowances comparable to the increases granted civilian employees of the Government last year. The military budget includes, under proposed legislation, an amount estimated to be sufficient to cover the cost of such an increase.

Family Benefits

"Second, present laws do not in many cases provide adequate benefits for the families of servicemen who die, either while serving their country or after retirement. In recognition of this need, the Congress is now considering survivors benefit legislation which would authorize a self-sustaining system based on contributions from the servicemen themselves. This legislation, however, does not provide protection if service in the armed forces is terminated before retirement. I believe that protection should be continuous and that the most equitable way to achieve this protection is to extend the coverage of the old-age and survivors insurance system to all members of the armed forces. Such coverage would provide the same basic protection for our service men and women that is now enjoyed by most other Americans. A military survivors benefit system should be designed to provide supplementary benefits scaled to the earnings in excess of those covered by the old-age and survivors insurance system. These new military benefits would supplement the payments under the old-age and survivors insurance and veterans' laws in these higher pay ranges.

Contributory Retirements

"Third, I am concerned about the very large future obligations which are being accumulated under the present military retirement system. At the present time, these future obligations are not funded and annual appropriations cover only the military retirement costs for that year. I believe that the Congress should examine all the Federal retirement laws and the experience which we have gained under them with a view to determining whether future obligations for military retirement should be met by a contributory system in which career military personnel and the Government share in the establishment and maintenance of a retirement fund adequate to meet the rapidly increasing costs of military retirement benefits.

Housing

"The funds which the Congress has thus far made available for these (defense housing) programs provide only a small beginning on the work which must be done. Available funds for the direct construction of housing are so limited in the face of the pressing need that nearly the entire amount must be used for temporary housing near military installations. Less than 6,000 units can be supplied with present appropriations. These funds will take care of only a small part of the need at military installations.

"The growing need for defense housing makes it essential that the present statutory authorization be increased so that the Congress can provide additional funds as quickly as defense requirements are demonstrated. On the basis of specific needs thus far identified, additional appropriations in 1953 estimated at 325 million dollars will be required.

Social Security

"We should extend coverage to members of the armed forces, public employees, farmers, farm and household workers not regularly employed by a single employer, and other employed groups who are not covered by a publicly sponsored insurance system. Also, as soon as practicable, the present limitation of 3,600 dollars a year on earnings taxed under the insurance system should be brought up to date, and provision should be made for permanent and total disability protection.

Disability Benefits

"With respect to death and disability compensation payments arising from service causes, I recommend that the Congress carefully review the rates and revise them where recent increases in the cost of living warrant. This Budget includes 100 million dollars to defray the cost of such increases. The legislation making the specific changes should take into account the new dependents' allowances for disabled veterans with families, and the increases in death compensation rates which have been enacted in recent years, as well as payments to beneficiaries under other Government programs. In particular, the Congress should carefully investigate the disparities which exist because of the fact that survivors of many servicemen receive both veterans' benefits and old-age and survivors insurance benefits on the basis of military service, while families of other veterans receive only the veterans' benefits."

$52.1 Billion Budget

to any material increase in Federal taxes, and consequently the revenue for the current and ensuing fiscal years will be considerably less than enough to insure a balanced budget.

In his Budget Message the President noted that the monthly production of guns, tanks, planes, ships, and other military hard goods had increased more than five-fold since Korea and he said that it would continue to increase. More than one-half of the money for new procurement authorizations for major combat items and more than half of the expenditures in F.Y. 1953 for such equipment will be for new aircraft. New obligatory authority for aircraft in the 1953 budget amounts to $14.1 billion, with expenditures for new planes for all services for that year estimated at $11 billion. In 1952 authorizations amounted to $14.9 billion and expenditures are estimated at $5.8 billion, or little more than half of the amount to be spent in the next fiscal year, when the production rate will be greatly increased. The President points out that the very large costs for aircraft reflect the fact that the planes now under construction are much heavier and much more complex in design and equipment than those of even a few years ago. In some of the new models the cost of the electronic equipment alone exceeds the cost of entire World War II planes designed for the same purpose.

No estimate has been made public as to the ultimate total strength in planes of all Services. There will be a marked increase both in quality and quantity in the years to come, and the number of planes assigned to the Air Force will be proportionately greater than at present. The aircraft inventory of all types of aircraft now in use is approximately 35,000, including trainers, fighters, bombers, liaison planes, cargo and transport planes. Of these the Air Force has about 20,000, the Navy and Marine Corps, 13,000 and the Army 2,000. As planes of a new design become available the will replace not only the unserviceable planes, but also the types rendered obsolete by recent developments in aircraft design and propulsion. The present ratio of 3 Air Force Force planes to 2 for the other services will probably be changed to give the Air Force double the number of planes possessed by the Navy, Marine Corps and Army.

The proposed new military authorizations and estimated expenditures in billions is as follows:

	Proposed Authorizations F.Y. 1952	Estimated Expenditures F.Y. 1953	Proposed Authorizations F.Y. 1952	Estimated Expenditures F.Y. 1953
Office Secretary of Defense	$.5	$.5	$.4	$.5
Department of the Army	20.9	14.2	15.1	16.8
Department of the Navy	16.0	13.2	10.0	12.3
Department of the Air Force	22.1	20.7	12.5	18.9
	$59.5	$48.6	$38.0	$48.5
Proposed for later transmission	1.5	3.5	1.0	1.5
	$61.0	$52.1	$39.0	$50.0
Stockpiling and other activities supporting military services	.7	.3	.8	1.2
	$61.7	$52.4	$39.8	$51.2

Hook Group Opposed Contributory Retirement

The Hook Commission, which made the most comprehensive study of military pay ever undertaken, recommended against a contributory retirement system for those in uniform. The Commission's statement on this subject, which follows, is particularly significant in view of the President's proposal in his budget message for a contributory system.

"The retirement pay plan should be a non-contributory plan with all costs to be met by the Government on a pay-as-you-go basis, i.e., without advance accruals or funding.

"A non-contributory plan of retirement is traditional with the military and particularly suited to a government agency. Private industry, lacking the taxing power and the security of perpetual existence, wisely accumulates in advance the funds from which to pay retirement benefits, even though the employer's corporate existence should end. The Government has no need to accumulate such a fund as long as the power to tax exists. Other such Government funds are in reality only bookkeeping entries and the receipts of funds are in fact merged into the general funds of the Treasury and used as such for current expenses. They cannot be set aside years in advance to serve a particular purpose and be productive unless the Government is to move into ownership of the tools of production.

"Thus, with the fund itself serving no useful purpose, to establish a contributory plan or a funded non-contributory plan would only create a large extra expense to the Government in providing the administrative and clerical personnel necessary to deduct and record the contributions, real or fictitious, and to administer the so-called fund."

Army Reservists Retired

The Army has announced the retirement of the following Reserve officers. Each has completed 20 years of creditable service and has attained the age of 60, and consequently are entitled to benefits under Public Law 810.
